HENRY PETERSON & CO., Publishers. No. 319 Walnut St., Philad'a.

PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, JANUARY 25, 1868.

Price $2.50 A Year, in Advance. Single Number 5 Cents.

8

"FOUND DEAD IN THE STREET."

The labor is over and done;
The sun has gone down in the west;
The birds are asleep every one,
And the world has gone to its rest—
Sieepers on beds of down, Neath cover of silk and gold,

Soft, as on roses new-blown, Slept the great monarch of old! Sleepers on mother's breast, Sleepers happy and warm, osy as birds in their nest, With never a thought of harm!

Sleepers in garrets high, 'Neath coverlet ragged and old; And one little sleeper all under the sky, Out in the night and the cold! Alone in the wide, wide world, Christless, motherless he; Begging or stealing to live, and whirled Like waif on an angry sea.

11.

The daisy looks up from the grass, Fresh from the fingers of Night, To welcome the birds as they pass, And drink in fresh rivers of light. Sleepers on mother's breast,

Waken to summer and mirth; But one little sleeper has gone to his rest, Never to waken on earth— Dead-found dead in the street,

All forsaken and lorn;
Damp from the head to the feet,
With the dews of the sweet May-morn

111. Bead-for the want of a crust! Dead—in the cold night-air!
Dead—and under the dust,
Without ever a word of prayer;
In the heart of the wealthiest city

In this most Christian land, ithout ever a word of pity, Or the touch of a kindly hand! THE DEATH SHADOW OF THE POPLARS.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, BY MRS. MARGARET HOSMER. AUTHOR OF "THE MORRISONS," &C.

CHAPTER VI.

THE ROMANCE OF WYNHOPE,

Wynhope is a large and handsome town, lying a good many miles south and west of The Poplars. It might even be called a city, if its inhabitants were pretentious po-ple, ambitious of new titles, but the town of Wynhope it had been in the time of their fathers, and the town of Wynhope they were content to have it yet.

It had broad; well-paved streets, lined with shops and stores of gay appearance in one quarter; and not a few fine old-style home-steads, substantially handsome, claiming plenty of elbew room, in the other. There were a goodly number of churches and academies, a prettily laid-out public park, and a town Hall, wherein, in gay scasous, dramatic, and even operatic, represen-tations were given to delight the aspiring and cultivated people of Wynhope. But, despite its citygraces and adornments, there was an undeniable rurality about the old place. In the centre of its most popular streets you would come upon a wide-porched cottage, with vines of clambering roses, cape jessamine, or Australian plant, winding round its windows, and climbing over its low roof. You could look through the palings that surrounded its pretty garden, a see a miniature farm-yard at the back higs that surrounced its pretty garden, and see a miniature farm-yard at the back— where gay turkeys strutted with bristling importance, and little bantams disputed con-tentiously with great shanghais. The tinkle lost, even in the neighborhood of the whole Wynhope had net only a river approach, but its manufactures warranted much railroad communication also; and thus at one strag-gling outskirt of the town where the great gning outsire of the town where the great depot stood, there was a rattling, banging, hammering cluster of workshops, which had spring up around it, and ready-made cloth-ing, restaurants, and beer-saloons in profu-sion. But Wynhope had its romantic side; its streets soon wandered off into lanes, skirted with cedar and sycamore trees, and westward from its business agreed a prefit westward from its business aspect a pretty, graceful bridge spanned one of the loveliests streams that ever dashed headlong over time-worn rocks, or wandered in whispering stillness among banks of wild flowers. Sweet Clementina Creek; few of the pretty girls who weve rhymes to its shining waters in the gushing days of poetic fancies, knew why it bore that maidenly name; they were why it bore that maidenly name; they were content to drop pebbles into its silvery whipered story told.

breast as it lay in the morning sunlight, or sigh over its moonlight stillness when they strayed in groups along its verdant banks.

There was one charm about the Clemen tina—it steadily refused to become comtina—it steadily refused to become common, or noisily vulgar. There were pie-nic grounds along its banks, where the lower class—and there were very decided distinctions of society in Wynhope—used to claim the privilege of holding roystering sway occasionally; its paths likewise were as free to the sunbonnet factory girl in her calieo hood, as to the pretty miss in her elegant garden hat, but its shady beauty had never suffered by desceration. It was the lovely garden hat, but its shady beauty had never suffered by desceration. It was the lovely poetic Clementina, with its dozen phases of water life in every mile, its dark brooding stillness overhung with willows, its wild foamy dashing over stones half hidden in the spray wreaths, its curving nooks form-ing flower-bordered lakes, its tiny cataracts, and fairy meelstroms never growing dull or and fairy maelstroms never growing dull or commonplace, but always reigning over the minds of the youthful Wynhopers as the dearest of living streams. Before you came to the bridge that spans this favorite water, the appearance of Wynhope becomes very rural, considering its businesslike aspect of a few rods further towards the river. The houses change to cottages, the gardens spread into little fields, and daisies and clover spring under your very feet. One of the oldest and most picturesque of these pretty habitations, had belonged time out of mind, to a family named Berryl; an unfortunate household in one thing, since they had reversed the order of nature, the younger branches being all gone, and only the elder trunk of the family tree remaining.

Old Paul Berryl, now nearly four-score, lived desolately in the homestead made glad in years long gone by the sound of merry voices.

His wife and four children had been one after the other taken from him, and he stood alone, a bowed old man, childish in spirit and very sorrowful. Little more than twenty years before they had been a happy family, well to do for such plain folk, and prosperous in every undertaking. John, the eldest, was a handsome young man of whom they were properly proud. Old Paul had an ambition of his own, and by some chance influence the lad was entered into the navel school and bred a gentleman, as his gratiinfluence the lad was entered into the naval school and bred a gentleman, as his gratified parent said. The three daughters, Mary, Nelly, and Bab, as they were called, were pretty girls, particularly the youngest, who was the family pride and hope. The two elder were delicate; but Barbara was blooming and brilliant as an opening rose. She was gentle and thoughtful, given to moping, her world find her mother used to say, when she would find her in some quiet corner reading old stories, with a perfect unconsciousness of anything occurring round her.

The three girls were belles, in their way, and not without suitors; and Mary and Nelly became happily betrothed to two brothers, James and Edward Garfield. Promising and James and Edward Garfield. Promising and comfortably situated young men whose father, a flour dealer, had taken them into his trade and given them a good start in business life. Perhaps the Garfields were a shade higher in the social scale than the pretty girls they proposed to lift a straw's breadth in matrimony; at anyrate, Mrs. Garfield, their respectable and ambitious mother thought so and for a time discounsate of the start of the strategies. mother, thought so; and for a time discoun-tenanced the union; but being a tenderhearted, as well as a piring woman, she had yielded when she saw her boys hearts set on the hope of making Mary and Ellen Berryl their wives. Besides, John Berryl, the now their wives. Resides, John Berryl, the now past-midshipman, was such a fine gentle-man-like fellow, that when the two families met together in social conjunction to recog-nize the close union that would soon exist between them, the heart of Mrs. Garfield was subdued so completely by the elegance and grace of the son, that she aniably closed her eyes to the home-pun simplicity of the mother, and the downright bluntness of the honest old father.

honest old father.

Speaking of the family to her husband, she confessed that she had regarded the close alliance in any but a hopeful light.

"But I feel almost reconciled to it now," she added. "To be sure, Mary and Nelly are merely pretty and amiable, but young Mr. John is quite stylish, and Barbara promises so well, that she'll be likely to make a fine match and raise the whole family."

Alas for poor Barbara, it was in the fond adulation of those who loved her only, that she was ever destined to hold a fair place in society.

Somehow a scandal grew out about herwhispered at first, and indignantly denied by all who knew her well. A theatrical com-pany had played at Wynhope with great suc-cess; and when, after a six weeks' season, cess; and when, after a six weeks' season, they departed, their comedy hero, the ele-gant young Dorsett, that all the young girls of Wynhope raved about to each other in secret, remained behind.

How he came to know honest Paul Ber-

She had been seen hanging about his darling boy, and there poor John heard the in her hand, and her pencil tapping her lips, story of his blotted name, while something the willows en the Clementina banks; and of his father's spirit in the young man froze. the willows on the Clementana banks; and late people going out that way to the little factory village, lying a few miles beyond, had noted her stealing homeward to her father's slumbering household, whilst the stealthy lover strode away into the town.

Every one knew these things before the word was brought into her own unhappy home.

home.

There was an orphan girl, called Esther Davis, who had lived with them for years, and knew no other interests than those of the family who had adopted her; she was a good deal younger than Barbara, little more than a child, in fact, and people in the stores where she went to buy the family provisions talked freely before her. She came home in great wonder and much aritation, burtaked freely before her. She came home in great wonder and much agitation, burdened with the tale.

Mrs. Berryl had been alling with a little fever. It was autumn weather; the rains set in early, and in the invariable house securing of the season she had taken cold, and sick with it, kept her room for a few days. It hampened that the sisters all were days. It happened that the sisters all were with her when the startled Esther burst amongst them, crying; "Oh, Mrs. Berryl, down at Hodge's the men were saying such strange things of Bar-bara. Oh, it's awful, and they're telling how her character's all gone, and she's dis-graced for ever. Please send Mr. Berryl down to explain it all, for its dreadful to hear what they say."

That was the beginning of a bitter end.

Mrs. Berryl looked with steady horror into her blighted daughter's eyes. She never asked one word or question after that; the startled truth gleamed out upon her sud-denly, and she cared to knew no more. She turned herself to the wall, honest woman, with a pure name and an unspotted record heretofore. She could not face the world

That night Barbara fled secretly from her home, and that day week her mother was laid in her grave. Mrs. Garfield came to speak quietly and seriously with Mary and Nelly. The result of her interview was that Nelly. The result of her interview was that some little packages, bearing her sons' names, were sent to her house, and a little note from the two sisters accompanied them. It contained but a few words. The sad trouble that had befallen them had determined them in the course they now pursued; their father needed their utmost care and attention, and although they would ever be James and Edalthough they would ever be James and Ed-ward Garfield's sincere friends, they begged to return the pledges they had received and say good-bye. They were quiet, delicate-looking girls at any rate, and no one of the very few people who now saw them would have guessed from their appearance how much the effort they had made cost their poor bearts; but Nelly's burden was not poor hearts; but Nelly's burden was not long to be borne. Before the spring came in again, scattering the snow with laughing sunshine, she lay beside her mother, and her poor, sad sister stood alone.

Old Paul Berryl bore the sheek bravely. It only made him stern and bard. He had been a good, easy-going soul, prosperous and happy, with a respectable bearing and the sensible judgment of a man who never tried to soar beyond his level. Now he seemed to have gained a strange, cold dignity, and the power of carrying haself readly show hits. and sister stood alone. power of carrying himself proudly above pity or confidence. He shut the door of his heart closely the morning he found his or confidence. He shut the door of his heart closely the morning be found his daughter's chamber empty, and never more opened his lips about her or her shameful flight. He laid his wife and daughter in the grave in stony silence, and went back to the task of living as one who defied the torture of memory or the fear of future sorrow to crush him into wailing grief. One only injunction he laid upon his diminished household. His son John was cruising in the Pacific, with a hope and promise of promotion when the three years' yoyage was over. No time of mourning was past, never think cife, with a hope and promise of promotion when the three years' voyage was over. No one should tell him the fearful story, till it.

"It is lonely in this great house," add her perplexed looking in their family related no longer be withheld from his knowledge. The decent sorrow of death he might share with them, and learn that his dear mother and sister were angels in heaven, but the black change of the are who had wearth to be always in such a lieve I should like to be always in such a substance by offering one on her own responsibility in a new awards within the lieve I should like to be always in such a substance by offering one on her own responsibility in a new awards were substant with a large field of the contracting one on her own responsibility in a new awards were substant with the case.

mother and sister were angels in heaven, but it he laked shaine of the one who had wrought the have he must be saved from hearing, at least upon the pittless sea, into which he for interest and sister were angels in heaven, but it he laked shaine of the one who had wrought the have he must be saved from hearing, at least upon the pittless sea, into which he for interesting the have he mady fling himself, to wash away the dreadful stain.

So time went on, but no word ever came of the desperate girl who had plunged them all in sorrow. Mary longed to be able to meet poor John and try to break the blow destined to fall upon him. Her own poor beart had bled at every word of his, writer the time consolation of their natual sorrow. He said he was striving hard to gain leave of absence, that he might share Barbara's watch over their dear old father, and let. Mary many the good fellow who was entirely willful looking creature, and the looking his lonely life so long and patiently. But there was another bridegroom waiting for the poor pirl, who grew impatien, and elaimed her just a fortsight before her brother's return. The poor longing eyes closed peacefully, and the wasted face smiled calmly in its last rest. They placed her beside her kindred, and old Paul Berryl went should everything."

To be runging in the and way the distribute when he her own responsion which is out a shadow of her former model.

"Oh, Leonore," cried Bertha repeach to be allowed only the row in the sharing out a subtance of anone in this charming that you were happy to be with us, and cold rank you were happy to be with us, and cold rank you were happy to be with us, and cold rank you were happy to be with us, and cold rank you were happy to be with us, and cold rank you were happy to be with us, and cold rank you were happy to be with us, and cold rank the former model.

To her surface the her one of his were done in the former make you truly larged them, and only pure that you were happy to be with us, and the scharming that you were happy to b his grief for his sister's death into icy hor-his grief for his sister's death into icy horror for the fate of his sister living.

But he soon woke to a stronger, firmer feeling, that grew apace into an unalterable determination, and in its strength and fervor saved him from blank despair. The man Dorsett, where was he? He would find him if he walked the face of the carth. That was the only thing now left for him to dewas the only thing now left for him to do, and when it was over he prayed God that he might lie down and die, for the sight of the light of day was hideous in his eyes. His father entreated him to stay with him and leave the villain in the hands of his Creator, who had said, "Vengeance is mine." For who had said, "Vengeance is mine." For the world-serving, cowardly brothers, the excited young man cherished a hatred only inferior in bitterness to the feeling that panted for revenge on Dorsett, and his father was fain to let him depart, fearing an en-counter in Wynhope between him and the now prosperous merchants, James and Ed-ward Garfield.

John Berryl left, his home, never to re-

John Berryl left his home, never to re turn. That was twenty years before the winter when Mr. Louis Wallace asked hand-some Olivia Copeland to be his wife, some day when he felt he might deserve her betday when he reft he might deserve her bet-ter; and in the few first years the poor lonely old father in Wynhope had wandered far and near in search of his lost boy.

Esther Davis, the grateful girl who repaid the early kindness the family had shown her by a life's devotion to its last surviving member, was well assured that the "young lieutenant," as she always called him, had died away in the South of some noxious fever, while bent upon his dreary search for revenge; but although letters were brought to him to prove it, and every incident of his loss detailed, the bereaved father refused to believe his boy was dead.

By and by he fell suddenly from his cold, proud, unbending grief, into childish ten-derness and sorrow. It was a paralytic stroke, the physician said; but Esther Davis, who was an ignorant woman, blest the change as God's merciful love that had thawed the frozen soul. He spoke of Bar-bara, quite forgetful of her crime, and only mindful of the sad separation that held them inevitably apart. Strange to say, the erring girl seemed to be aware of this change of feeling, and sent a timid token of her love and duty to her old father. It was received with a slight shock, that threatened to recall the past too clearly, but it lasted only can the past too clearly, but it hater only an instant, and the old man's face beamed with pleasure, and he wept fondly over the remembrance of his lost beauty. A peddler woman whom Esther had often seen wandering about with her wares, became a regular messenger after that time, and for five or six years had brought constant neck. five or six years had brought constant packages, that suited the old Paul's childish fancies, be they what they might. It was a lonely house now, the cettage near the Clementina. The front rooms were closed and no longer used, only the sitting room and the old man's bed room opening from it will belong to us all then, and I shall ree him 'Leenore, Misa Raye,' cried Olivia, flushed and no longer used, only the sitting room and the old man's bed room opening from it omy aunt's will the Oplars will be our home, but I really do not understand you when you say that he will belong to you when you say that he will belong to you when you say that he will belong to you when you say that he will belong to man all then, and I shall ree him 'Leenore, Misa Raye,' cried Olivia, flushed and displeased; "the gentleman of when you suit will the our home, but I really do not quickerstand you when you say that he will belong to you in pursuit of her many duties as housekeeper came into the room.

· CHAPTER VII.

"I am sending to New York by letter for some things I need," she said. "Is there any little commission I can add for you, fair ladies?"

ladies?"
She spoke gayly and cheerily, and seemed so bright and buoyant that the contrast between the two of the day before was reversed, Olivia had found Leonore's spirits, versed, Olivia had found Leonore's spirits, Leonore herself was drooping.

"I want nothing," Leonore said—then she added, "thank you for asking."

"If we could get those amber beads, you know, Leonore," hinted Adah. "Did you not say that was all we need to make our fire screens perfect?"

But Olivia was full of something important, and for the time being, conscious only of what she had to communicate. She bit her lips with sudden nervousness, and changed color once or twice despite her efforts at self-control before she spoke, then she said, clearing her throat, which seemed to grow provokingly dry, "Miss Raye, and my dear sisters, I think it right to tell you at once something of great importance to my own life that has just occurred, and indeed an event which nust affect your own in a measure, that is,

I believe it to be something of which you should be made immediately aware." Leconce rose up from her lounging posi-tion and fixed her eyes like glittering lights full on the speaker's face.

Olivia met the look quietly, only showing by a slightly heightened color that she felt its intentness "I do not know whether or not I surprise you when I say that Mr. Louis Wallace has proposed to me, and I have accepted him as my future husband." Her sisters uttered a little cry of astonish-

Miss Raye gave no sound, and she went on hurriedly:—

"I know, it being only two months since my aunt's death, the affair may appear pre-mature, and of course we shall be obliged to act most circumspectly. Indeed Louis may go abroad again and leave me under his mother's care entirely. But I trust you will understand, dear girls, that the arrangement must make nothing but pleasure for you, and that both he and I would not for the world interfere with your comfort or happiness in the slightest.

will come to live here then," said Leonore slowly, and with the manner of one who tries to understand a difficult proposition, "and we will be under a sort of dianship of his. Bertha and Adah v his sisters—but I, what shall I be?"

Olivia glanced with a faint shade of severity at the speaker, who with a strangely musing expression went on, taking no heed of the leek—when you say that he will belong to all—"she stopped quickly, as if a li ashamed of her warmth and haste. Leenere laughed loud and long.

You are jealous, which is weak and sil your lofty style. she said sharply

0000 satisfied and happy in her good fortune, so brightly hopeful for the future, and withal such a new and added dignity and grace of manner, that her sisters sighed involuntarily as if they too missed a pleasure that should be theirs.

Not a word would Leonore utter after she left. Her whole manner changed to one of dull brooding gloom, and she gathered herself into the corner of the soft and nursed her knees in stience, unbroken by a syllable till dinner time. Then she dressed berself carefully, and coming down into the great carefully, and coming down into the great dining room, where Mr. Wallace and his ma-ther were entertained in state, the gratified matron all beaming and serene, with the wish of her heart fulfilled.

Her son bore his happiness with singular equanimity, not in the loast degree evincing any emotion awakened by the circumstances around him. In fact he seemed, if anything, a trifle bored by his mother's congratulatory looks, and the ceremony of greeting his sisters in law that were to be ters in-law that were to be.

When Leonore saw as she did at a glance that his face expressed no elation, her own brightened instantly, and she laid her hand in his and laughed mischieviously in his eyes, without any explanation of her sudden

Olivia did not like this, and she frowned instinctively; still less did she relish the evident relief her future lord seemed to feel in the society of the provoking little creature, who, after her dull morning, flashed out into an evening of pesitive brilliancy. She astonished her completely, for Olivia looked on the sharer of her aunt's fortune as erratic, wilful and eccentric, without giving her credit for talent or peculiar mental endowments.

Now she could not withheld the involuntary admiration her sparkling merriment excited, and she wondered where a girl, educated in a quiet establishment under the control of elderly matten ladies, as her sisters had told her Leonore was, could have gathered the store of anecdotes and merry tales she told, the wit to charm against their will the hearts of listeners, and take their fancy captive. She made Louis laugh more heartily than his destined bride had thought possible for one who yielded so larily to the influence of mirth. She forced Mrs. Wal-lace to beg her to repeat a witteem that she had lost in the ringing shout of her son's laughter, and she conquered Olivia so far that she forgot to be wary and distrustful. and yielded completely to the spell of her witchery. The twin sisters were always pay and delighted when their pet companion was, in they of course rejoised in the general

The face of their enterminer beamed with The face of their entertainer beamed with the spirit of joy, her eyes danced and glittered, her cheeks glowed, her red lips shone in smiles and dimptes. She promised them a fairy festival on her birthday in the spring, and bade Lenis find an Oberen worthy of her favor, for she would be Titania and revive the court of fairies. She pictured the splendors of her minic hower upon the lawb, and gave each of her friends an appropriate character from Romance, in which to come and pay their court to her. Louis should be Ivanine, not that she thought him expaths of feats of arms, she said, but that he would look well in the dress, and was withal a knightly figure. Olivia could not be his look well in the dress, and was within a knightly figure. Olivia could not be his Rowens, her hair was ton beautifully black. She might not care to be the peerless daughter of the Jew, but she would look Rebecch elorously, particularly flany one annoyed her in the breach of dignity or decorned. She is such a splendid women, you know, "she said, turning to Louis, rayly." and so proper and correct, and faulthess in account. turning to Louis, sayly: "and so proper and correct, and faultless in every way, that harun searon creature, such as I, shock her into an additional fash of indiman surprise, which only increases her beauty, while is intimidates as humored, and there was no latent meaning in Leonore's tone to rouse the old district that for this once simulated in her heart. But the merry pull grew tired of being merry. Suddenly she changed her meed, and turning swiftly into thoughtful gravity, carried her listeners unresistingly with her who had being the rouse of this tabernacie' falls just thoughtful arraying earlied by the same and and appetite housed from restraint, until, like a dilapidated mansion, the "earthly house of this tabernacie" falls into runners decay. Fast young man, right put thoughtful arraying as add and the same times are always as and and are same times.

parent at first forebore to interrupt.

At length she said gently, "Do you not think, dear Louis, that Miss Raye is veryvery." She paused a moment, as if unable to select the exact word she wanted, and finally seized on the term "unsatisfactory" as a substitute for the one she needed.

"I think her very vivacious and capti-vating." he answered with great warmth, and in direct opposition to the worthy lady's "She saves one the trouble of yawn ing, and is so varied and delightful that you don't begin to weary of one style till she wish. "She saves one the treatile of yawning, and is so varied and delightful that you don't begin to weary of one style till she offers you another."

Mrs. Wallace coughed dubiously. "Yes," she admitted, "she is entertaining and amusing, in fact she is particularly amusing, but that is the last quality one would require in a wife, my dear, is it not?"

Her son did not respond to this way of thinking, it seemed. He answered, a little captiously. "Well. I really don't know why a man should condemn himself to the constant contemplation of stupidity; but, as you say, I suppose it's highly proper for one to get as dull a wife as he can."

"Why, my dear Lewis..." she had begun wonderingly, but she paused and allowed her knowledge of the young gentleman's character to weigh with her on the subject of taking him to task, a ceremony out of which she generally emerged somewhat ruftled, for although she was wont to describe him or the last of some and and word to describe him or the last of some and and word to describe him or the last of some and most describe and noble of men, it was a lamentable fact that Mr. Louis Wallace lest his laziness sometimes (which was what parsed with him for amiability,) and awakening to energy and crossness at the same mement, would yow that he would not be picked at and dissected by any one, not even his own dear mother, whom he loved and respected thoroughly as long as she in no wise interfered with his comfort or happiness. So Mrs. Wallace tapered her sentence off into a series of short coughs, and inwardly resolved to do her utmost to keep her susceptible son out of the range of Miss Raye's captivations, which even though he were engaged to Miss Olivia Copeland, could not be restated entirely.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

What Breaks Down Young Men.

It is a commonly received notion that hard tudy is the unhealthy element of college fe. But from tables of the mortality of Harvard University, collected by Professor Pierce from the last triennial catalogue, it is clearly demonstrated that the excess of deaths for the first ten years after graduacleafus for the first ten years after gradua-tion, is found in that portion of each class-inferior in scholarship. Every one who has been through the curriculum knows that where Eschylus and political conomy in-jures one, fate hours and run punches use-up a dozen; and that the two little fingers of Morpheus are heavier than the loins of Euclid. Dissipation is a swift and sure deshe might not care to be the peerless daughter of the Jew, but she would be Rebeser on the breach of dignity or decorner. She is the early flower expose to untimely frost in the large of the Jew of the path of vice are named. "Legion," for the yarmant or the Jew of the path of vice are named. "Legion," for the yarmant scarum creatures, such as I, she charman scarum creatures in the caracteristic constitution of the creature creatures in the caracteristic control of the caracteristic control of t

What a difference between the two sayings to Peles, attered within a few minutes of cach other? "Blessed art then, Smoot Barriona, for the hand blood both not revealed it must then, but my father which art in heaven. And I was note then, Thom art Peter, and I was note then Twill huld my church." "Get then behind pro, Fathan thou are an offener—er, as the word means, thou are an offener—er, as the word means, thou are an affener—re, as the word means, thou are an affener—re, as the word means, thou are an affener—re, as the word means, bind canced her some pain before; inc there exery had been the least fear that the disasse would prove montal, notth enderly in had alone so. They buried her, and her marked and strange to tell, the narrator said, greeved for her allerthy, but so deeply that he too died and was land beside her when the read was the too died and was land beside her when the read we will those two opposite sides of his charge to tell, the narrator said, greeved for her allerthy hut so deeply that he too died and was land beside her when the read we will those two opposite sides of his charge to tell, the narrator that the two much fall to dust to gether. When they was an her redfin to their lasters that they much fall to dust to gether. When they was an her redfin to their lasters that the paid to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to their lasters that the paid to the fall to dust to the last from heaven our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with free of another bindings are over some short story our it in with the some of humility and clearity do stories which are for such return will be confiscated. We will not be responsible for the safe keeping or each return of any manuscript. ---

NOTICE.

Back numbers of THE Post, containing the early chapters of "THE DEATH SHADOW OF THE POPLARS," can be supplied to Jan-

We are indebted to our old friends for the renewal of their subscriptions, and for the new subscribers whom they have induced to send in their names.

For the warm words of praise with which many of our old subscribers have accompanied the renewal of their subscriptions, we are also grateful. Few things in this world are pleasanter than to have our labors appre

CHARLES DICKESS.

The first two readings of Mr. Dickens, on Monday and Tuesday of last week, were attended by an excellent representation of the intellect and culture of Philadelphia.

the intellect and culture of Philadelphia.

Mr. Dickenne's reception by his audience seemed to us rather cool than otherwise, though this was partly owing to his tripping in very quickly, and beginning his reading before everybody was well aware of it. It may also be partly attributed to the natural manner of our people, who seem to be very much afraid lest they should compromise their reputation for solidity of judgment and critical discrimination by applauding in advance of the performance. There is moreover a large infusion of Quaker blood in the more intellectual classes of Philadelphia; and of all audiences to drive a reader or speaker distracted, with their icy coldness. and of All andiences to drive a reader of speaker distracted, with their icy coldiness and want of demonstrative enthusiasm, commend us to one made up of the sober members of the highly respectable society of Friends. As Mr. Dickens progressed, however, with his reading, the audience thawed out somewhat, and laughed and apthawed out somewhat, and isughed and ap-planded in a hearty and genial manner. While on the second reading, although made up in a large degree of different material, the crowded room from the very first words, responded to the pathos and humor of the reader.

On these two evenings, Mr. Dickens read
The Christmas Carol, The Trial in Pickwick, an abstract of David Copperfield, and Bob-Sawyer's Dinner Party.

Mr. Dickens's ordinary tone, that which Mr. Dickens's ordinary tone, that which he employs for the narrative portion of his readings, is not an unusually good one. We have heard numerous persons who could read a simple poem or narrative quite as well as he does. His voice is not remarkably clear or powerful—though stronger than we had expected from certain entitisms.

It is in the dramatic portions of his readings that Mr. Dickers's power as a reader is made manifest. He conceives each character as a distinct existence, and is able to command that variety in his tones, expression and gestures, which gives a distinct and appropriate voice and manner to his chief personnes.

personages.

This faculty is an unusual one. Few readers can command for instance more than three or four distinct voices; the majority of readers perhaps not more than two. But Mr. Dickens has, we judge, at least ten to twelve distinct voices. Thus there was in David Copperfield, Peggotty, Mrs. Gummidge, Steerforth, Meawher, and Mrs. Micawher, in addition to David himself, to represent whom the natural time was used.

in addition to David himself, to represent whom the natural time was used.

And yet neither of the above volcas could be confounded for a moment with that of the Judge in the Pickwick trial—which is a great success on with Mr. Wickle, or Sergeout Burfus, or Tay Tim, or Bob Cratchett, or Sergeout Burfus of Tim Stringer as a language of the strike us as altogether as the country of the sergeous server for the country when the server is the sergeous server.

and a great distriction of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is not all the consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the fall that consists in They found it is the interior of the collin, where the is no hope of their collins and both that is living the latter of the fall that consists in t

"He had a heart, you know. I told you that to begin with," said Miss Raye, and she made him a little explanatory bow, at which he laughed and said, "Ah, I see."

Mrs. Wallace and her dutiful son, now dutifully settled for life, and high in his mother's favor in consequence, rode home together in the cold, snowy meenlight. He wrapped his fur collar around him and lay back in the corner of the carriage, with a determination towards silence that his wary parent at first forebore to interrupt.

SATURDAY EVENING POST.

If Ball would stop his "rolling on" in that direction, and set about writing half-a-dozen poems one-half as good as the one he claims, people might then believe a little more in him. As it is, all the argument in the world will avail nothing, because Florence Percy parent at first forebore to interrupt.

for such return will be confiscated. We will apt to want Bail or anybody else to "rock him to sleep."

If Bail would stop his "rolling on" in that direction, and set about writing half-a-dozen poems one-half as good as the one he claims, people might then believe a little more in him. As it is, all the argument in the world will avail nothing, because Florence Percy has, and he has not, written other poetry avails. equally good.
Suppose two of Ball's journeymen should Suppose two of Ball's journeymen should each lay claim so having made a certain saddle of very fine workmanship—one of them being notoriously a first-class hand, and the other a tenth-rate bungler—would it take Ball five minutes to decide which of the two should have the credit and the cash? What would you care, Ball, for the longest certificates from the friends of Bungle, telling how they had seen him "working on that ere saddle five and twenty years ago." You would simply say to him, "Bungle, you know you could not make a saddle fike that to save your life. Saddles are not lucky chances—but the man who can make one good saddle can make another." good saddle can make another.

Ball, ideas are as difficult to fashion pro-perly as leather. A bungler can no more make a fine poem by a happy inspiration,

THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.

For five hundred and forty miles on Omaha, and from the banks of Missouri River to within ten miles of the summit of the Black Hills, (the highest point of the Rocky Mountains crossed by the road.) the Union Pacific Railroad has been completed and equipped. So rapidly has this work been accomplished that the coders of our newspapers have hardly kept pace with its advance, and those who may have failed to see any of the recent reports will be amazed at the fact that forty miles of road have been built and opened within about two months, in spite of all the ob-stacles of frost and snow, which would ef-fectually block all ordinary railway confectually block all ordinary railway con-structive work. Money, energetically and judiciously expended, has built and equipped this national railroad with a rapidity pre-viously unknown. Settlers, traders and me-chanics have closely followed the pioncer-ship of the locomotive, and cities numbering thousands of inhabitants now great the eye of the traveller, where, until the construc-tion of the road, there was no hamlet, or even an emigrant's cabin. The work of fur-ther construction will not be suspended even during the winter months, but in the rockduring the winter months, but in the rock-cuttings of the mountains beyond the present terminus, the pick and the drill will be actrively employed until the time shall come when further track-laying will be practicable. The extent to which the securities of this Railroad Company have been taken during the past few months by the people of every section of the country, prove the wide-spread interest felt in its prosecution and completion and security and also the very lay feith in spread interest fell in its presecution and completion, and also the popular faith in the commercial greatness of the enterprise; and the coming year's reports of the mineral and agricultural production of the great Western Territories will show that the ad-vances made in aid of its construction by the general government have been a true public economy.

The California mails and passengers have already been carried through to New York and Philadelphia in fifteen days, and it is expected that during the coming season the regular time will be reduced to nine days, and that more than half the Pacific coast travel will take this route, Instead of the long, tedious journey of twenty-two to twenty-four days by sea. The intervening stage trip between the two ends of the Pacific Railroad line will be but a romantic holiday excursion, and we have no doubt that the passenger traffic in that direction this year will be a full carnest of the immense business that must follow the completion of the work perhaps two years later. We can see no reason to doubt that this greatest of modern works will go on a vigorously as it has been begun, and that play as it has been begun, and that provided the completion of the first time really united, to be, let us hope, forever inseparable.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The California mails and passengers have already been carried through to New York and Philadelphia in fifteen days, and it is expected that during the beauty and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, and with her garden-knife had grasped it unconsciously among the tops of the plants, an

a quiet, unobtrusive man, and seemed de sirous of going through life is the enjoyment of his inherited riches, attracting as little public attention as possible

New Jersey Ball, not succeeding in establishing his claim to Florence Percy's the purpose mode of cooking caldange, and states that the best mode of doing it is to ently came out in six of seven tremendously and the way it is said to be made more palatable and tender.

New York dailies, and finally exclaimed: "Be jalers, the man that chew'd that can ate it."

The Target Ball, not succeeding in establishing his claim to Florence Percy's "Rock Me to Sleep" by his pamphlet, recently came out in six of seven tremendously solid columns of one of the New York dailies, in further vindication of his claim. The article is so long, and dull, and heavy, that Life in India.

Scinde has a most unenviable reputation for snakes; it is computed that eight or ten persons are killed every week by the bites of these loathsome reptiles, but—if this is to be of any importance—they are commonly natives; the Europeans do not go into the hy-places where the patience more attempt. by-places where the natives go, no not astempt by-places where the native sign, wo not alternot the particular work that they do, and are differently lodged. One of the chiefs on the Scinde railway, who was in charge of the Kurrachee district—and the Kurrachee, as is well known, is the chief port of Scinde— informed me that at the beginning of the raily scane, the spakes were so numerous rainy season the snakes were so numerous that although he confined his walks to the road in the vicinity of the town, he was obliged to carry a long stick with which to throw them out of his way; these were not,

of course, all venomous serpents.
You seldom speak to a man who has passed any considerable time in India, who has not, on at least one occasion, seen a snake in his bed-room, which is not very much to be wondered at, seeing that the warmth of the clothes must be very attractive to the reptiles. Three or four instances have come to my own knowledge where the cobra has been found under a pillow on which a man has been sleeping all night. It is but seldom, however, that a sleeping man is bitten by the reptile; and, indeed, the snakes, if more deadly, do not hite a fourth of the number that are bitten by scorpions, which latter are a perfect curse. It is hardly worth while to a perfect curse. It is hardly worth while to expatiate upon the miseries caused by the insect plagues of the tropics, but Anglo-In-dians lay far greater stress on these than on the danger from reptiles. Some of the incidents related are posi-tively horrible. A lady told me that her hus-band, a surgeon, died in one of those short illnesses so characteristic of the tracks, he illnesses so characteristic of the tropies; he felt unwell in the morning, and before sun-down was a corpse. His widow, a mere girl, could not believe that he was dead, and refused to leave him, frantically expressing to the doctor her disbelief. Her husband had not been dead many minutes when this oc-curred, and the surgeon, pointing to the floor, said, "My dear Mrs. —, if you per-sist in doubting me, look there," and by some mysterious instinct, a hyead column of ants mysterious instinct a broad column of ants mysterious instinct a broad column of ants had scented the room of death, and tens of thousands of them were already within the door, and scaling the rude couch on which lay the so lately living man.

In speaking of snakes, I am reminded of an anecdete I once heard of the wife of an Indian railway official, who was trimming with a large knife some plants which formed a border to a flower-bed. She was cutting the tops off, and while so engaged she was scared by seeing the coils of one of the most seared by seeing the coils of one of the most deadly serpents of the country amongst the leaves. With a loud shriek she dropped the knife and the plants, and a man employed in leaves. With a found shries and cropped the knife and the plants, and a man employed in the garden ran to her assistance. On hear-ing the cause of her alarm, he sought to kill the anake with the hoe; the creature was plainly to be seen writhing about, but, al-though struck, it made no effort to escape plainly to be seen writhing about, but, al-though struck, it made no effort to escape or turu on its assailant. At last it lay mo-tionless, and the gardener ventured to pick it up, when he found it was headless. To the horror of the lady, the head was dis-covered among the leaves which she had thrown down on seeing the snake; she had

Same which are to be read. He that has tever read them at all, will, we think enjoy the readings the most. A wittiesm that one knows by heart, will full upon the era i little robbed of its read eyes plantly. We think enjoy the readings the most. A wittiesm that one knows by heart, will full upon the era i little robbed of its read eye from the most of its readings the most. A wittiesm that one knows by heart, will full upon the era i little robbed of its read eye from the lips of the best readings to represent the sum purpose of every anchine.

Amendation Notes, Published by Appleonate to such a feet and not more extraction, should be the main purpose of every anchine.

Amendation Notes, Published by Appleonate to the main purpose of every anchine.

Amendation of the every subject of the event and also for sale by the maintain one was insufficiently progressive the sum of the sum of the sum of the sum of the every flat we did not mere readings. The readings the most. A without a major provided in the progression of the event which are to be read. He that may be the reading of the most. A without the era in little robbed of its read, even from the lips of the sum purpose of every anchience.

Amendation Notes, Published by Appleonate Co., New York; and ashe for sale by the major of the event which are contained as a sum of the event when the major in the progression of the event which are contained as a sum of the event when the major in the progression of the event which were to take them on, when it struck lim that small one was insufficiently builded by the sum of the sum of the sum of the sum of the cord of the cord had come off. It was a twill be the cord lying on the source of the cord and taken the box, the sum of the cord limit to saying it was almost dark, and he could just see the cord lying on the source of the cobra, and threw back its head. The sum of the sum of the cord lark and the could have from which he were the cord lark and the cord lark and the could have from which he were the cord lark and Commander to ask his opinion of it. They approached him, and said: "We want to ask year opinion, your honor." "Well, my boys, what is it about?" "We want to implement by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia Price, in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magaziki, for February, Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

Price in paper, 25 cents.

Littington Magazi

a goose in a Datch oven—always on a spit.

The said that the practice of decoration are staurant, and was asked by the waiter what he would have? "Why, somethin to the average was the said to have a goose in a Datch oven—always on a spit.

The said that the practice of decorating churches and homes with evergreens at Christmas, originated with the Druids.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Over Sea.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST,

GRESHAM HOTEL, DUBLIN, A Dec. 30th, 1867.

It seems almost impossible to us, so journers in Erin, to realize the severity of the weather which you have been suffering in Philadelphia, New York, and elsewhere in the United States. Here the climate is never cold, but raw, damp, insidious, and pene-trating. The days are short, dingy, foggy, and rainy—and the streets and side-walks are perpetually and most provokingly muddy, Heaters and furnaces are considered excessively modern inventions, and as such are used only in banks and public offices; but used only in banks and public offices; but grate fires burn everywhere, and the specks of soot from the Liverpool coal are very vexatious. I go through a process of soap and water numberless times during the ceurse of the day, with the air of a martyr, as who should say, "Behold she doeth what she can, but of what use?"—sure that half an hour after, a little hand will be laid on my cheek, and a little voice quaver; "Oh! my check, and a little voice quaver: "Oh! II—, your face is all full of little black specks;" or, with a sidelong glance at my hands, and a tone of severe reproof in the little voice, "Look at your fingers!" Alas!

tittle voice, "Look at your lingers!" Alas' soap can do no more.

The houses of Dublin are very antiquated in appearance; and the public buildings, consisting of Trinity College, The Bank of Ireland, Dublin Four Courts, and the Post-Office, are alike immense, dingy, and colonnaded; with here and there a speck of sear-last and gloom of steel, where the particular let and gleam of steel, where the patient entinel paces his beat.

The house where Tom Moore was bern is now a disreputable corner grocery, in a narrow, dirty street. His bust is niched between the windows of the second story. I have plucked a leaf from the grave of Robert Emmet—which one finds in old St. Michael's church-yard, unmarked, unhonored save by a blank and sunken headstone. In Glass Neven Cemetery—Catholic—is a neat tablet, erected over the grave and "To the memory of Ann Devlin, faithful servant of Robert Emmet." Strangers are always shown this tomb, and the poor old creature is thus brought into pleasant, posthumous, and deserved notoriety, by her devotion to her brave, unfortunate master. O'Connell's remains lie not far off, and are about to be removed to the splendid monument which his admiring countrymen have raised to his memory. In fact there is an cruption of pil-lars, busts, and statues all over the city. commemorative of persons or events—of which O'Connell's Monument, Nelson's and Wellington's Pillars, and the equestrian statue of King William the Third, on Colstatue of King William the Third, on College Green—are the most imposing.

St. Patrick's Cathedral is my delight. It is centuries old, and is built in the form of a cross. Swift was one of its Deans—King William worshipped here after the victory of the Boyne; and here is a marble tablet, with its pompous Latin memorial of Curran—whose remains lie in the cemetery of Glass Neven. Battle-stained flars droon above. Neven. Battle-stained flags droop above burnished belinets in the Nave, and the ef-fect of them over chaunting priests and acolytes is very impressive. The cathedral is an Epi-copal one, notwithstanding its name and some of its Remish observances, and the music is splendid,

Trinity College, founded in the early part of the sixteenth century, is the Alma Mater of Burke, Goldsmith, and other celebrities. The author of The Deserted Village was ex-pelled thence on account of his stupidity; and his cup and saucer, and other bits of household ware, are now carefully pre-served. A copy of Paradise Lost, with the authentic autograph of John Milton on its

The second is an immense crayen sketch, life size. It represents the loyal peasants of Rambsbach capturing rebel prisoners. The faces and figures are splendidly and vigorously drawn. It gives one a sense of freedom to look at it, its execution is so wide and broad and uncramped.

and broad and uncramped.

Using the same language that we do in the United States, it is curious to note the differences in meaning which occur here.
Wishing a spool of cotton, not long since, I walked into one of the menster shops, where one may obtain anything, from a bonnet or a velvet cloak or a diamond ring, down to a pair of shoes or a hair pin, and preferred my modest request. "A speed of cotton?" slowly repeated the clerk, as a look of puz-nied wonder overspread his face, and he brought out various articles having cotton as the foundation of their texture, each of which I contemptuously rejected, repeating the cabalistic words, "I want a spool of cotton." Presently I was helped to a chair, and a convention of five clerks was called, who, after debating for several minutes, evidently agreed upon something—for one of them approached me respectfully, and asked, "Is it a creel you want, miss?" at the same time showing me the desired article, which I joyfully seized and made away with. I have wandered through more than pyramidal mazes in the various stores, in search as the foundation of their texture, each of midal mazes in the various stores, in search of cetton batting, and have been shown wool, horsehair, the stuff that mops are made of, and all the while I knew that somewhere. not many feet off, that batting was curled up, soft, warm and secure, and snickering to itself to think I didn't know what to

Passing along Nassau Street a few days ago, with a young English lady of my acquainta
—"Here," said she, "is the swell lollipaps of the city." Having a faint idea that b Having a faint idea that lelliof the city. Having a familier that half lolling pops were a peculiar sort of blue pill, and first cousins to calomel and jalap, I looked around, expecting to view the various paraphernalia of a drug store, when I saw, what do you think?—guess!—but I'm sure you ouldn't for a month. It was a condy store. The Fenian demonstration, which took place here a few Sundays ago, evidencing the feeling of the people against the government for the Manchester executions—was a very sad affair, which occasionally bordered upon the luddrous. Fifteen thousand men, women and children, struggled past, through the rain and mud, shivering, cold, miserable and forlorn, and green flaunted everywhere in defiance of the red. I doubt not many are suffering to day from sever colds, taken place here a few Sundays ago, evidencing in defiance of the red. I doubt not many are suffering to day from severe colds, taken by so rash an exposure to the weather. Foor things! I could not help pitying them.

Innocent as a lamb, I not long since went out with a green veil on, and was so stared at by soldiers, police and constabulary, and, in fact, every one else, that I grew alarmed for my personal safety, ru-hed home and poked the offending article into the depths of my trunk. An emerald ring which I wear, is obnexious, by reason of its color, and I am afraid to indulge in either spinach or cauli-flower, for fear of being accused of treasonable sentiments.

ble sentiments.
Phonix Park is the great drive of the city, a pleasant country-like place, containing in its immense area the Vice Regal Lodge, Constabulary Barracks, and Zoological Gardens. Grafton Street, short, narrow and tortuous, is the promenade. I cannot end my letter gold there on accounted the complete of the co

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

CONGRESS.-In the U. S. Senate, on the 13th, the Judiciary Committee were instructed to consider the expediency of providing for suspension of public efficers in case of impeachment. Mr. Wilson, of Mass., introduced a bill, which was referred, reducing the army. Mr. Grimes, of Iowa, introduced a bill, which was also referred, limiting the naval force to 8,500 men. Mr. Davis's reso-lution for a tribunal to decide Constitutional questions was considered.

On the 15th, a memorial was presented from members of the Board of Registration in Mississippi, asking an advance of supplies to the planters, to relieve the prevailing des-

In the House, the bill placing the South under the exclusive control of Gen, Grant was reported from the Reconstruction Com-mittee, under suspension of the rules, and made the special order until disposed of. The bill declaring that no decision adverse to the constitutionality of a law of Congress shall be given by the Supreme Court, except with the concurrence of two-thirds of the o reported under a suspension Mr. Williams, of Pennsylva nia, offered an amendment requiring unani-mous consent of the judges. This was remous consent of the judges. This was re-jected, and the bill passed finally, with a proviso that if any Circuit or District Court of the United States decide an act of Conto be unconstitutional, its decision hall be at once certified to the Supremo ourt, and if two-thirds of the members of the latter do not sustain the decision, it shall

The Ways and Means Committee were directed to inquire into the expediency of placing the manufacture of whiskey in the hands of the Government.

Mr. Brooks submitted a minority report on the new reconstruction plan, demonating the whole act as revolutionary and incom-

the whole act as revolutionary and incen

A bill was reported to prevent the further sale of public lands, except under the Pre-emption and Homestead laws and laws for sposing of town sites and mineral lands. PENNSYLVANIA.—In the Pennsylvania Se ate bills were introduced exempting from tax personal property, moneys at interest, and bonds and mortgages not issued by corporations. Also for a registration of voters, repealing the act punishing conductors for assigning special places in cars to negroes, and relating to judgments in foreign attachments. In the House, bills were introduced for a free railroad system, establishing an nents. In the House, bills were introduced for a free railroad system, establishing an insurance department, repealing the act al-lowing colored people to ride in the cars, lowing colored people to ride in the cars, and repealing the Sunday liquor and license

THE STANTON CASE .- Gen. Grant, on the 14th inst., yielded up the War Department to Edwin M. Stanton, who is now in office as Secretary of War. The President has as as Secretary of War. The President has as yet taken no action on the subject.

Outo.—The Hon, Allen G. Thurman, Democrat, has been elected United States Senator from Ohio, for the term beginning March 4th, 1869. The Republicans voted for Hon, Benj. F. Wade.
CALIFORNIA.—Reports from the southern portion of the state give the particulars of the recent disastrous storm. The greater

AUSTRIA - The Austrian Government is reparing to reduce the size and expenses of

THE FAMINE IN PINLAND - Very sad ac counts are received of the familie in Fin-land. The peasants in that country are re-duced to such extremities that they think themselves happy if they can procure leaves composed, in equal portions, of sawdust, moss and a coarse rye flour. Many have obtained permission from the Government o emigrate.

HAVANA.—The despatches from Havana gain report that an outbreak among the egroes is feared. There is also great dis-ontent among the whites on account of the imposition of exorbitant taxes, in conse-quence of which the small farmers are in some places abandoning the cultivation of their fields, and the educational establish-

A Wife Sells her Husband.

The Canton (III.) Register tells a queer story:A few days since, a woman, named Mrs. Rosella Mills, a war-widow, called upon Jus-tice Chosk, and obtained a warrant for the arrest of John Matheny and his wife, who were living near Cuba, in that county. Salleged that they had forcibly taken fr her three hundred and ninety dollars money, and other property to the value of seveny-five dollars. Upon being ques-tioned closely in regard to the way and manner of the theft, there appeared to she a very curious history about the affair. Sheriff Waggoner made the arrest of Matheny and wife, and they were brought to this city on Wednesday. All the parties, including Mrs. Mills, seemed to manifest an earnest desire to have the matter settled. Matheny admitted that he owed Mrs. Mills one hundred dollars berrowed money, but he denied stoutly the robbery. He said that there was some arrangement between Mrs. Mills and his wife, involving the balance of the money. The parties went before an attorney to see if the matter could not be micably arranged, and the following de-elopments were made: It appears that Mrs. Mills was living or boarding with Matheny and his wife, and Mrs. Matheny became jealous of her. There was trouble in the domestic circle. Mrs. Mills admitted that she leved Matheny, and she meant to have him. Mrs. Matheny then thought that if Mrs. Mills was going to run off with her husband, she ought to be paid for it. Mrs. Mills readily agreed to this, and paid Mrs. Matheny one hundred and twenty dollars. An arrangement was then made and consented to for Mrs. Mills and Matheny to go back to her old home, somewherein Perm-sylvania. Mrs. Mills was to go to Elmwood, and remain there until Matheny could com-plete arrangements for his departure. She went to Elmwood and remained the allotted went to Elimwood and remained the allotted time, but Matheny not making his appearance, she concluded she had been swindled, and so made her way back to this place, and leaves prescribed, is what the British ments and diseases prescribed. entered complaint as above stated. At first Mrs. Mills did not want to see Matheny, but wanted the attorney to settle the matter with Matheny and his wife. Matheny said he would not settle with the attorney, but he would settle with Mrs. Mills. They were the would settle with Mrs. Mills. They were included to occur the private room of the mills of the private room of the mills. The mills are stated in the workshop and in the field. stability Barracks, and Zoological Gardens.

Grafton Street, short, narrow and tortuous, is the promenade. I cannot end my letter without speaking of the wonderful bog oak ormanients, tables, dressing cases, paper folders, ring stands, jewel boxes, writing desks, &c., as imfinitum, which are manufactured by Goggins & Co. They are carried and executed in the most exquisite manner.

HATTIE.

Stage Feasting.

One of the most carious sales which have recently taken place in Paris was one of the "properties" of a theatre. They consisted chiefly of the larder of the stage, which, by the way, is to some degree going out of fashion. Our actors insist upon real diskes being served to them. It is said that Scale has the first dramatic author who introduced real dishes on the stage. It was in his piece, "Le Soldat Labourear," A harbar stage of the country was under water, and his piece, "Le Soldat Labourear," A harbar stage of the protected with the solutents of the would settle with Mrs. Mills. They were permitted to occupy the private room of the would settle with Mrs. Mills They were permitted to occupy the private room of the would settle with Mrs. Mills They were permitted to occupy the private room of the would settle with Mrs. Mills They were permitted to occupy the private room of the stage withing the solution of the stage in the solutions of the country was destroyed. The was the first dammate and much property was destroyed. The was in any cattle and much property was destroyed. The was the country was destroyed. The was the first dammate and much property was destroyed. The the country was destroyed. The was the first dammate and much property was destroyed. The was the first dammate and much property was destroyed. The was the wasted the the country, and in a few minutes they had a fattorney, but the wind the settlement, but the wind the stories. The attorney, but the wind the wind the deficiency of the terms of their settlement, but the would the wind the stories. The transfer of the story was flar to fit to

SKATING GLEE.

When winter comes and frevies o'er Our crystal lakes from shore to shore, We vote the ingleside a bore, And all go out a skating: And then we have such jolly fun, And such fantastic tricks are done

Thinks nothing like it neath the sun.

Frosty whiskers, icy nose,
Chattering teeth, and frozen toes, All for pleasure, so it goes. When we go out a skating, When we go out a skating, O

And when the biting northern wind its way to muffled ears will find, We don't a continental mind, But all go out a skating; And, mayhap, if the ice be all Aglare, and bumps of caution small, A gent may cut an awkward sprawi, Or lady lose her waterfall.

And if perchance the ice is thin, Some reckless chap will tumble in, And there arises quite a din, When we go out a skating; The ladica scream and faint with fright, And comrades work with all their might.

To save their chum from drowning quite, While urchius laugh to see the plight. Frosty whiskers, icy nose, Chattering teeth, and frozen toes, All for pleasure, so it goes, When we go out a skating, When we go out a skating, O.

Plump Ladies.

Paris having been much excited during the past winter over an enormously fat beauty, who died just as she had become leady who died just as she had become a writer in the Patti Journal observed with astenishment that he had never once met her during his walks. On second thought he remarks:

"But it is probable that a lady who weighed 500 pounds did not walk much in the public streets."

A fancy for fat women is indicative of in-creased devotion to the sex in a community. The Greeks had a special word to designate a man who loved "plumptitude." The most luxurious races in the world have always manifested a penchant for solid loveliness, especially when combined with fair complexion and small hands and feet. But by a singular law of nature it happens that naturally fat people almost always have small hands and feet. Elizabeth Veronica, the fat lady who died in December, was in 1848 very heautiful. At that time she begged of Government to be allowed to represent Liberty in a great

DO SO

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. NEUTRAL IN POLITICS.

Splendid Inducements for 1868.

The contents of THE POST shall consist as here-tefore of the very best original and selected matter. We commenced in the first number of January, a deeply interesting story, called

THE DEATH SHADOW OF THE POPLARS, by Mrs. Margaret Bosmer, author of "The Mortleons," &c.

We shall follow Mrs. Hoamer's story with

TRYING THE WORLD, by Miss Amenda

ST. GEORGE AND THE DRAGON, Elizabeth Prescott, author of "How a her Way," "A Dead Man's Rule," Ac.

Besides our original stories, we give The GEMS OF THE ENGLISH MAGA ZINES, and also the NEWS OF THE WEEK, AGRICULTURAL ARTICLES, WIT AND HUMOR, RIDDLES, THE MARKETS, &c., &c.

PREMICIAS. Various Premiums, from Penells to Sewing Machines, including Books, and Silver Plated ware, are given to those getting up Fremium Liets. A list of articles, terms, &c., will be sent to any one desirous of getting up a Premium List upon application by letter, inclosing a postage stamp.

The NEWING MACHINE Primiting For 30 subscribers at $2.50 aplece or for 30 subscribers and $60—we will send Wheeler & Wilson's No. 3 Machine, price $25. By resulting the difference of price in cash, any higher priced machine will be sent.

The Priest went out by path and hill, The King was hunting in the wild:

Every subscriber in a Premium list, inasmuch as he pays $2.50, will get the large Premium Steel Entraving of "Washington at Mount Vernon," or "One The Life's Happy Hours," or "Everett in his Library," as he may prefer.

Our PREMIEM ENGRAVINGS. For our Premium Engraving this year we shall give the splendid portrait of Washington, engraved from the celebrated picture by Thomas Hicks, N. A. This is splendid portrait of Warman Hicks, N. A. This is celebrated picture by Thomas Hicks, N. A. This is a full length portrait with Mount Verson in the background, and is thirty inches long by twenty-one inches side. No American home should be without a poctrait of "The Father of his Country." This engraving, or one of "Edward Everett in his Libbrary," or one of "Edward Everett in his Libbrary," or one of hist year's preminous, "One of the bore but little game in hand; The mother said, "They have taken the child."

To said his blood and heal the land: Lives Happy House," If preferred, will be sent grafts as a Premium (postage paid) to every full ($2.50) subscriber, and alon to every person sending a conf. It will not be sent to viab a discobers, unless they send see dollar retra

TLRAS. Our terms are the same as those of that well known magazine. Title LADY'S FRIEND tworder that the challe, and the Frendum lists, may be made up of the paper and magazine conjointly be made up of the paper and magazin-computity when so desired—and are as follows: One copy (and the large Prentom Engraving) $2.50.

C1.1 III. Two copies $1; Four copies, $6;
Five and one crais) $8; Eight copies and one graits $12; Two is fand one crais $28. One copy of THE 1981 and one of THE LADY'S

The King bent low with hand on brow, He stayed his arms upon his knee;

On the copy of the five tand one of the Lady's Every person getting up either of the above viales, will receive the Premium Engraving in addition.

Cor Subscribers in British North America must con't be cuty costs extra as we love to pu pay the U to different Post office of the sizel. two The contents of The Post and of The Lade's

Priend will always be entirely different,

(" In r minting, name at the top of your letter, The intermediate name at the top of your latter, your Post office, remain, and Same. If possible, pre-cure a Post-office order or Post-office order or Post-office order or Post-office order or Post-office order order. It is not be to the first order of the first present of the first order of the first order order. The kinfe uprising toward the blow, cannot be had, a not initial states notes. Point send money by the Express Companies, unless you pay their charges.

[82] Specimen numbers of Title Post are sent on Suddenly from him brake the wife, And shricking. "I am his dearest, I.

receipt of fix conte.

HENRY PETERSON & CO., 319 Walnut St., Philadelphia.

An Adrest Swordsman. Pulaski, as it is well known, was as adont

Pulsaki, are in a well among was an animal a continuous how as perfect in horizontal and the state of the American areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the American areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through New Jersey, in the darkest of the Macrosca areas through the foreign to the west of the Macrosca areas through the read of he starbours, and the Burth to must have a correspondent to the most area of the foreign to the west of the Macrosca area through the care of he starbours, and the Burth of the Macrosca area through the care of he starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the macrosca area through the care of the starbours are and here the heads of the here are and here the heads are an area through the care and here the heads are an area of the heads are an area of the starbours are and here the heads are an area of the he Let' A man, who stutters some, thus essayed recently to compliment Anna Dickinson. Meeting a friend, he said. "I rode cover to P.— last might, to hear Miss Buddickinson. She is a we-wo-wonderful woman. It was so sesstill while she spep-spoke, you could have p-p-picked up a pin to

THE VICTIM.

BY ALFRED TENNYSON.

A plague upon the people fell, A famine after laid them low, Then thorpe and byre arose in fire, For on them brake the sudden foe; So thick they died the people cried "The gods are moved against the land." The priest in horror about his altar

To Thor and Odin lifted a hand. " Help us from famine And plague and strife! What would you have of us? Human life? Were it our nearest, Were it our dearest, Answer, O answer, We give you his life.

11.

But still the foeman spoiled and burned, And cattle died, and deer in wood, And bird in air, and fishes turned And whitened all the rolling flood And dead men lay all over the way, Or down in a furrow scathed with flame; and ever and aye the Priesthood moaned, Till at last it seemed that an answer came

"The King is happy In child and wife; Take you his nearest, Take you his dearest, Give us a life."

The King was hunting in the wild They found the mother sitting still; She cast her arms about the child

The child was only eight summers old. His beauty still with his years increased, His face was ruddy, his hair was gold, He seemed a victim due to the Priest. The Priest exulted, And cried with joy,

" Here is his nearest, Here is his dearest, We take the boy."

The land is sick, the people diseased, And blight and famine on all the lea The holy gods, they must be appeased. So I pray you tell the truth to me

Is he your nearest? Is he your dearest? (Answer, O answer,) Or I, the wife'

He stayed his arms upon his way.

"O wife, what use to answer new?
For now the Priest has judged for me."
The King was shaken with holy fear;
"The gods," he said, "would have choser well; Yet both are near, and both are dear, And which the dearest I cannot tell! But the Priest was happy, His victim won. "We have his nearest, We have his dearest, His only son!"

And shricking "I am his dearest, I—
I am his dearest " rushed on the kurfe.
And the Priest was happy;
"Oh, Father Odin,

We give you a life.
Which was his nearest?
Which was his dearest?
The gods have answered
We give thee his wife!

proofed, along the streets of London. As his errand was a charitable one, and his own means were appropriated almost to the extent of his power before the year began (that is, he planned out all he could spare for the year in January into certain channels, leaving little for chance charities, he determined, for the purpose of increasing his funds, to call on a few friends in his way to the house of sorrow whither he had been besitation. to the house of sorrow whither he had been invited.

"Thirty-two! yes, thirty-two," he said, knocking at the door of a handsome house.

"Is Mrs. Wickwork at home?"

"Yes, sir," said the footman, and led the way to the receiving-room.

By the side of a brilliant fire, surrounded by bright steel in every direction, on the surface of which its reflections danced, sat a lady mast the middle are, but not much. lady past the middle age, but not much. She were a widow's dress. She was pale and serious-looking. She had a book in her hand. Her chair was softly cushioued, and on the rich rug and embroidered stool supported her feet.

"Ah! Mr. Dovedale! this is indeed kind.

'Ah! Mr. Dovedale! this is indeed kind.

"Ah! Mr. Dovedale! this is indeed kind.
It is a treat I didn't expect," she exclaimed, half rising as her visitor entered the room.

"I am afraid it is a long time since I was here," he said: "but you are rather out of my beat. I'm glad to see you looking pretty well. Your room is a vast improvement on out-of-doors; such a fog—you can cut it, my housekeeper says; it is a real wet blanket in your face—chills you, chokes you, and smothers you all at the same time."

Mrs. Wickwork larguidly smiled, and shook

Mrs. Wickwork languidly smiled, and shook her head, and sighed. "I'm sure I don't know what should make me look well," she said; "I have suffered much since I saw

"Indeed! Anything—?" fresh, Mr. Dove-dale would have said, but he didn't like to do it except by shooting up his eyebrows in an inquiring manner.
"What new sorrow do I want?" asked the lady, the tears slowly filling her eyes: "it is lady, the tears slowly filling her eyes; "it is just six months to-day since—"

Mr. Dovedale saw the white handkerchief on its way to her face. He heartily wished he had known the day of Mr. Wickwork's demise, and had called the next day, or day after; however, he kept silent until he thought she was calm, and then said gently, "There are privileges attached to sorrow, and when the severity of the blow is past we are able to consider them, to—"cripay them, he would have said, but the word sounded harsh in the presence of a widow's ounded harsh in the presence of a widow's cars, and as he couldn't think of a better, the severity of an affliction like mine annot pass. I can never suffer less," said the Wickwerk

"The severity of an affliction like mine cannot pass. I can never suffer less," said Mrs. Wickwork.

Mr. Dovedale was very sorry, and he said so He said more: he added, that if the suffering did not grow less the consolation might merease, which would, of course, effectually diminish its amount.

"What consolation?" asked the lady; "here I am alone, without an object in life I had almost said—no heart to repose on, no hard to lean on!"

"Mr. Dovedale almost funcied that she Dovedale almost funcied that she

"Mr. Devedale almost funcied that she must have found so poetical a description of her wee in the besit she had been reaching. His heart grew colder and colder towards her. He said, in a tone getting quite out of the triner key in which sympathy is usually expressed. "I am surprised, my good friend, to hear you ask such a question. There are certain and great smoothinsin Christianity, and I always considered you as a professor of it."

of it."

"Oh, if it were not for that I could not bear up as I do," said the lady.

"But, having that, you will surely learn to bear up before. Remember, my friend, how many are suffering under a similar bereavement, with the additional distress of poverty to embitter it. Now here are you surrounded with ease, and comfort even luxury; yes, luyous."

"A capital apone of the kept his word at last, I am glad to say."

"Yes, yes, he has," said Mrs. Innes, with hesitation; "but not more than we had a right to expect, you know. He is related to us; poor Captain Innes was his second to surrounded with ease, and comfort even luxury; yes, luyous."

"Second cousins have sometimes to when the

Mrs. Wickwork's face fell back in its usual hard lines, out of which sorrow had drawn it, she took out her purse, and produced half-"I don't generally give to chance applications," she said, "one gets so imposed upon; and really there is a tax of some kind for ever coming. But I know I can depend on Mr. Dovedale had a great mind to push the half-crown back; she looked so cross and unfeignedly grieved to part with it. But he thought better of it. thought better of it.

"This is sweet, surely," he said, taking it up, "to be able to visit or help the fatherless and widow in their affliction; to hold the purse of God's providence, and be the happy hand to dispense His bounty."

"Yes, indeed," said Mrs. Wickwork, screwing up her mouth and putting her purse back into her pocket.

"What a miserable woman she is!" he exclaimed, as he paced on briskly through the claimed, as he paced on briskly through the fog; "how shall I find poor Mrs. Mayblossom?" and his kind heart was pained as he contemplated his visit to the house of mourning, which was to be the end of his labour.

"Well, well; it's of no use to be sentimental about it," he said; "genuine feeling makes us forget ourselves, and weep with those who weep; and, after all, I may find it less trying to see her real sorrow, to which I may administer consolation, than the sel-

I may administer consolation, than the solish whining of that—dear, dear; what an uncharitable spirit I am getting into! Let me see, down Woburn Place. Yes; that is t. Turn to the left; here we are." And he was about to knock at another door when topened, and a lady attired for walking appeared at it, and evaluated gark.

peared at it, and exclaimed, gayly—
"Mr. Dovedale! who would have thought of seeing you on such a day? I wonder Sarah allowed you to come through this fog."

fog."

Mr. Dovedale laughed, and said he didn't let a trifle turn him from his purpose; "but," he added, "you are going out. I won't detain you. I have more calls to make. I will come to you another day." Mrs. Innes wouldn't hear of it; she, was quite glad he had nipped in the bud her intention of braving the fog; and, drawing him in with friendly force by the hand he had offered in farewell, she closed the door, and led the way to a snug and comfortable room, where they were soon seated by a good fire.

"Now I am very much obliged to you for this visit," said the lady, throwing off her cheak; "it has kept me from venturing out, this visit," said the lady, throwing off her cloak; "it has kept me from venturing out, and saved me, perhaps, from rheumatism and toothache; for I am sure the wind is in

Mr. Povedale was glad he had been so uviceable, and proceeded to make inquiries serviceable, and proceeded to make inquiries after the family of his hostess.

'You have not heard of Charles's appointment, perhaps?" she said, among off things. No, he had not. "A capital a pointment—entirely through Sir Rodne He kept his word at last, I am glad to say reavement, with the additional distress of poverty to embitter it. Now here are you surrounded with ease, and comfort, and even luxury; yes, luxury," he added, as he glanced round the room. "You are without a single care beyond that of your own personal health and enjoyment."

"Ah! there it is! You have touched the secret spring of my deepest grief," exclaimed Mrs. Wickwork; and to her companion's dismay up went the pocket-handkerehief again. If he had but known where that spring had lain, he would never have touched it.

"You may suppose what a trensure my "Will do," thought Mr. Dovedale; but he lain, he would never have touched it.

"You may suppose what a trensure my lavinia would have been if she had remained to cheer me." I wan know her marriage was "Yell wall was know her marriage was "Very well. She was here last week. We "Very well. She was here last week. We health; it is most precarious; perhaps he will have to throw up his appointment, I shouldn't wender."

This was asked with a frank sort of gayety that made her companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a cloud that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a cloud that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a cloud that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a cloud that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a cloud that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a cloud that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile are companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile are companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile are companion smile are companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile are companion smile are companion smile are companion smile are companion smile. He aswered that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a companion smile are companion sm eare of me, and I am not in want of anything; yet for all that, there are many ways in which my sister Hodson might show her generosity to me. It is true she has promised to leave all to Cecila when she dies, and cannot keep it any longer herself; but, in return for that, what does she do? Why, takes her away from me continually; expects, in fact, to have the best half of her company."

"But you said she was here continually," marked Mr. Dovedale.

"Well—yes, certainly she comes if I send

"Yes; I dare say she is melanchely now, she has enough to make her," he thought; "and if, as Mrs. lune, says, she was so in her prosperous days, what am I to expect to see in this hour of trying adversity?"

He did not regret his purpose of visiting her, but he felt that he should be very glad when it was over. He was fairly tired when he knocked for admittance. A pretty boy, in black, opened the door, and answered his inquiries with great politeness. The room he was ushered into was very small, and the table was covered with needlework and tory military school.

"I took him away—I was obliged," said

Mrs. Innes. Mr. Dovedale looked surprised.

Mr. Dovedale looked surprised.

"I believe I was wrong, but the discipline was so severe he couldn't bear it, poor little fellow, and being the youngest he was always my pet. I found it so very hard to part with him, and his health would have suffered if he had remained. I complained, and applied for relaxation of rules for him, through Colonel Brotherton, who was so intimate, you know, with Captain Innes, but I got no redress. I fancy the Colonel wasn't hearty about it, so I took him away; it is a great anxiety to me, and I don'tknow what I shall do with him, but—"

A loud noise interrupted her, and a boy of about thirteen, rushed into the roem, not knowing that any but his mother was there.

"Fred! Mr. Dovedale—speak to Mr. Dove-dale," said Mrs. Innes, feeling awkwardly sensible that her visitor would not see much delicacy in Fred's appearance.

The boy gave a hasty recognition of Mr. Dovedale, and then made some urgent ap-

Dovedale, and then made some urgent application to his mother in a whisper.

"No, really, Fred;" and "Indeed I can't allow it;" and finally, "Well, remember this is the last!" were uttered by Mrs. Innes from time to time, as he still more and more urgently pleaded, and at the close she took out her purse, and put some money in his hand, kissing his cheek, and conjuring him not to hurt himself.

Her eyes followed him out of the room, and she said, with a mother's fondness.

and she said, with a mother's fondness,
"He grows so fast, and he is flushed today; don't you think he gets like his poor

Mr. Dovedale didn't see the likeness, but thought it was probably his own fault, especially as she said,

"Everybody sees it. He is going to have freworks in the court with some of his old schoolfellows. I assure you he makes great demands on my purse. I tell him I cannot stand it; but boys will be boys."
"He looks as if he could stand a little discipline," remarked Mr. Dovedale, gently.

"Yes, his health has greatly improved since he left that school. I must speak to Sir Rodney about him," said Mrs. Innes, with

Will he do anything for you?" asked

Mr. Dovedale,
"Will he? He cannot help it; something must be done, and he can do it best."

Mr. Dovedale thought it was a happy thing to be able to wind up necessities in so satis-

to be able to wind up necessities in so satisfactory a style, and having no more time to spend, arose to take his leave.

"I am on my way to see a person whom you once knew, I think," he said; and added, "poor Mrs. Mayblossom—don't you remember her husband, Captain Mayblossom? He was disabled early in he career in India, and died at last from the effects of a sabre wound, a lingering fileess of many years, closed by death in very periodic dreumstances. I didn't heartill shis morning that his widow is in the school of sang poverty, stances. I didn't heartill shis morning that his widow is in races, one assung poverty, with six children, and in very delicate health,"

"I remember the name," said Mrs. International Lagrangian of the health and the health an nes, coldly, "but he had his half-pay, I sup-

"Yes, of course."
"And she has a pension?"

three,

Yes, but that, with six children!" said Mr. Dovedale.
"Ah, indeed! I'm thankful I have but rree," said Mrs. Innes, with satisfaction.

"And bad health," continued her com-Dreadful that. I don't know what illness is, never suffered from anything but rheumatism and teothache, and I manage to keep out of them pretty we'l."

"I thought of raising a little subscrip-tion for her, quite privately. I mentioned her name to you because you know her," said Mr. Dovedale, "Years ago," said Mrs. Innes, hastily;

"Years ago," said Mrs. Innes, hastily; 'we were never very intimate; she was rather of a melantholy trun, and I was alays the reverse, you know."
Mr. Dovedale stood silent for a moment to ve Mrs. Innes time to tende, her offering, orhaps her son's fireworks had cost too uch; she did not produce her purse, but

You are going to see her Yes," said Mr. Dovedale "Yes," said Mr. Dovedale.
"Well, perhaps you will let me know if there is anything I can de. Of course, being a widow myself, I am obliged to think of my own wants and my family;

that he had always thought Mrs. Hodson a very generous hearted woman.

"Yes, that is her public character; but prings;" so suddenly looking, the declared it was the varinest looking thing of cer seen.

"The suddenly looking thing of the replied that she had been replied that she had been replied that she had been them.

"Yes, that is her public character; but takes matters so quietly as I do."

"Now isn't it monstrens?" thought Mr. Dovedale, as he winded his way to the inst to be rown brother's child?"

Mr. Dovedale suggested that she had other relatives, and might have chosen among them.

"Yery likely; these things get no exaggerate!, and, really, it isn't everyhedy that takes matters a quietly as I do."

"Now isn't it monstrens?" thought Mr. Dovedale, as he winded his way to the inst the three widows; "she that has all things abounding, and every possible help—that she should talk of taking matters quietly; she is worse than Mrs. Wickwork, and that she should talk of taking matters quietly; she is worse than Mrs. Wickwork, and that is saying a good deat."

He had a long way to walk before he arrived at the humble lodging occupied by Mrs. Mayblossom.

Yes; I dare say she is mclancholy now, he has consult to make her? he thought.

the unfedded his newspaper and said, with a smile, "I shall have the pigeon-pie!"

And so he had; for, having punished him for changing the hour, and exposing himself to the danger of indigestion by the threat, the housekeeper took the oven in hand, and soon convinced it that the pie must be baked.

An hour after it had been served up, Mr. Dovedale was walking with a firm, quick step, stick in hand, gaitered and water wide for.

"Poor thing "said Mrs. Wickwork, "But you said she was here continually," "But you said she was here continually," "But you said she was here continually, "Unmarked Mr. Dovedale.

"Well—yes, certainly she comes if I send for her, and frequently without; but that so not a pleasant state of things for a mother to have to ask for her child. If Mrs. Hodson did the right thing, she would—; but son did the right thing, she would—; but one cannot; but a poor sickly widow, "Yo, one cannot; but a poor sickly widow, "I's of no use complaining. I speak openly to put his hat, but with wonderful celerity we could not very well be so. We are a large party with little space." As she spoke the work was gathered into a large basket of an ornamental kind, and the books were put into their places on the stand, and everything looked right and orderly.

S SON

Scores

Mr. Dovedale couldn't open his mission before the young people. He introduced himself as having been a little acquainted with the late Captain Mayblossom, whose name he hardly liked to pronounce, since the widow's weeds had only just been assumed.

Mrs. Mayblessom fixed her eyes on him as he spoke, and said with calm tenderness,

"You knew him? then you loved him;
everybody who knew him loved him."
Mr. Dovedale felt relieved by her quietude, and answered that his knowledge had tude, and answered that his knowledge had been very slight; he added, with embarrass-ment, that he had heard some particulars of his long illness and death that morning, and had called to make a few inquiries about it. As he spoke he glanced significantly at the young people, who, without a word from their mother, took the hint and left the om one by one till he was alone with the

You wished to hear of my beloved husband's death," she said, when they had closed the door. "I cannot describe to you the peace and joy of his last moments—his last moments, of the whole of his illness—but moments, of the whole of his illness—but the last was the seal of the whole; not a doubt, not a care, not a fear."

Mrs. Mayblossom spoke with animation; her face, very pale before, glowed, and her eyes brightened—there was an expression of happiness in her countenance that almost seemed like a smile. Mr. Dovedale was very much struck. He expressed his satisfaction that such was the case, and hoped he was not intruding on her grief, so very recent, assuring her he came from no motive recent, assuring her he came from no motive of idle cariosity, but simply to know the truth and to act upon it. Mrs. Mayblossom replied that it was not really recent; she had been looking for his loss too long to feel it a shock, "and seeing him after so long a trial of suffering sink peacefully into rest—real rest in the arms of his Saviour—was more than payment for all."

"But your loss is great," said Mr. Dove dale.

"Losa! it is beyond loss," she said, with some emotion. "I have parted with myself, and yet we were so completely one that I cannot feel separated. I cannot bring him down here (nor would I.) but I can follow him in the contemplation of that Saviour whose love he rested in; I am again with him; his memory is identified with my hopes of rest and happiness."

"This is a widow," thought Mr. Dovedale.

Mrs. Mayblossom now entered into some details descriptive of her husband's faith, and illustrative of the good hand of God on him and on her—showing how they were helped, how they were cheered, supported, taught—in what here the head to have been here here the same head here. in short, how that dark season had been continually brightened by heavenly light.

Mr. Dovedale listened with deep interest; she did not cease till she was wearied with talking; then her cheek grew pale and lanuid, but there was the same serenity in her

"We certainly ought to exercise more ith," he said; "but had he no drawback faith," he said; "but had he no drawback with respect to your ability to provide for your family?"

"He thought gravely, but not sorrowfully for it; he committed us to our covenant God, who has told us to cast all burthens on Yes, but you see, my dear friend, there are certain matters of fact that must be attended to; God does not work miracles."

"Pardon me, He does!" said the widow, smiling; "I see it daily."
Mr. Dovedale smiled too, for he knew

I could tell you of innumerable mercies. every one a miracle, that have been showered down on me since I have been in need. The Lord has graciously led me, I may say, by sight, not by faith, for I do so plainly see His hand in all, that to fear for anything

"I am afraid," said Mr. Dovedale, glancing round the little room, "your circumstances must be rather straitened."

"Oh yes, very poor," said the widow, "but I consider that I am like people who have money in the bank, and never keep much in the house: when they want it, they go to the bank and get it. Don't misunderstand me," she added quickly, noticing Mr. Dovedale's look of surprise; "I don't believe the Lord will supply my fancied wants, only my real ones. I have a settled income. only my real ones. I have a settled income, slender indeed, but sufficient unless any extraordinary call should arise; and for any such real call I know He will provide."

"Is there any such pressing on you now ?"

asked Mr. Dovedale, gently. "You may feel sure I have but one object in asking." Mrs. Mayblossom looked at him a moment; her eye brightened. She went to her desk on the table, and took out a long blue desk on the table, and took out a long blue paper, which to any practised eye would have declared itself a bill. "This came in a week ago," she said. "I had no know-ledge of the debt, my dear husband must have forgotten it. The death of the man has obliged his widow to call in all her money. I have pleaded for time, that I might be able by self-denial to save the noney, unless help to pay the demand came.

"You may plead the Statute of Limita-tions," said Mr. Dovedale, looking at the bill, which was for part of an outfit, and came to £19 17s. 6d.

came to £19 17s. 6d.

"It is a heavy sum," exclaimed Mrs. Mayblossom; "but the debt is a just one, no doubt. Oh no, I shall be able to pay it in time; but this is just such a call as I alluded to."

Mr. Dovedale asked for pen and ink, and wrote a cheque for twenty pounds, which he handed to her, saying, "Now you will call this a pircele."

"Assuredly," said the widow, the tears rising to her eyes. "May He who sent you on this errand pay his messenger! He will."

Mr. Doyedale felt that he had been amply paid by the lesson he had been taught. e put his hand into his pocket for his loves, he felt Mrs. Wickworth's half-crown.

reature!" he inwardly ejaculated.
' he thought, as he walked home, Poor creature! money, connections, comforts, what ar Those two widows are depending on mere streams: this one is at the fountain bead. They may be disappointed at the drying up of their resources any moment—she, never.

Sarah was puzzled that evening by the abstraction of his manner, and she thought, as he read the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, which he chose at prayer time, that he seemed to be reading it more to himself than to her, for he stopped continually as if reflecting on it; and so he was, for a new light had fallen on the page, the light of example, and he also remembered the words, according to your faith be it unto you."

KINNING BERGE BEATR.

BY CHARLES ALGERNON SWINBURNE.

Kissing her hair, I sat against her feet; Wove and unwove it—wound, and found it sweet:

Made fast therewith her hands, drew down her eyes,
Deep as deep flowers, and dreamy like dim skies; With her own tresses bound, and found her

Kissing her hair.

leep were no sweeter than her face to me-Sleep of cold sea-bloom under the cold sea; What pain could get between my face and hers?

What new sweet thing would Love not relish

Unless, perhaps, white death had kissed me

there— Kissing her hair.

ONE OF THE FAMILY.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "LOST SIR MASSING-BEED," " CARLYON'S YEAR." &C.

the coast cleared, the pretty boy took his hat from him with a respectful courteous air, and a third time he found himself seated by a fireside.

There was no soft rug with disobedient rinded, the fire seemed more inclined to go to sleep than to dance; but the grate was clean, and if it had not been such a cold, dark day, it would have looked cheerful course.

Mrs. Mayblossom apologized with casy grace for the full occupation of the room.

Mrs. Mayblossom apologized with casy when the water in the house; when the move in the house; when the have resistors so seldom, "she said, "that we are not prepared for them; indeed, we could not very well be so. We are a large party with little space." As she spoke the work was rathered into a large basket of an mot all are more inclined to go to steep than to dance; but the grate was clean, and if it had not been such a cold, dark day, it would have looked cheerful course.

Mrs. Mayblossom apologized with casy grace for the full occupation of the room.

"We have visitors so seldom," she said, "that we are not prepared for them; indeed, we could not very well be so. We are a large party with little space." As she spoke the work was rathered into a large basket of an mot at all room in all that I know myself. I am not an anticus about that."

I am stronger than I seem—not very unation from the invitation from his wife. Claude had not though the party with little space.

I am stronger than I know myself. I am not all right, ma. I told you so; the obeyed, when I have had authority for its model jumped at it."

But Mr. Murphy had entertained no idea of chartising his son. One assured of the invitation from his wife.

Claude had no thought for anything but that supendous fact. "Blake," gasped he, as seen, we cold the law weren of the invitation from his wife.

Claude had no thought for anything but that supendous fact. "Blake," gasped he, as seen, we cold the law weren of the invitation from his wife.

Claude had no thought for anything but that supendous fact. "Blake," gasped h may be even able to do him a good turn, by putting in a word about a latch-key. Dinner! why, nobody has been asked to dine here since my bachelor-days. Shade of tipicurus, there will be pickled onions with the cold beef! But Blake, Blake!"—here Mr. Murnhy's yoic sank to ouite semplehral tones. phy's voice sank to quite sepulchral tonesbe set upon the table after dinner. If it is a fresh bottle, it will be of that vintage imported from Afric's sunny strand at four-and-twenty shillings, bottles included; if it is a half-bottle, I know of an earwig that met his death in that at least three weeks met his death in that at least three weeks ago. As for the whiskey, however, there is plenty of it down here, which Selina knows nothing about. See"—Mr. Murphy disclosed a cupboard furnished with a false front of palettes and small pictures, behind which reposed several samples of Kinahan—"see how the wind (and likewise the cold water) is tempered to the shorn lamb!"

But Mr. Murphy was not destined to enjoy

But Mr. Murphy was not destined to enjoy the evening with his new friend in the con-vivial manner he had reckoned upon. The dinner, however, which, to Mr. Blake, who had been accustomed to campaigning, seemed a very telerable repast, went off with complete success, except for a perilous jest complete success, except for a perilous jest of Claude's, who, when the cold beef appeared, observed to his guest:

"There are just a pair of canvas-backed ducks, and you see your dinner."

"There are nothing of the sort," broke in Mrs. Murphy indignantly.

"It's a matter of opinion, my dear," returned the painter airly. "I was referring to my little pictures of L'Allegro and Pencross on the wall yonder; very pretty girls, and generally accounted to be a pair of canvas-backed..." vas-backed-

"A little decorum, if you please, Mr. Mur-phy," broke in Selina.—"Allow me to re-commend you," Mr. Blake—since my husband forgets everything except his ill-timed jokes—to try a little of that Port wine. I should apologise for its having been opened, but you will find it none the worse for that; it is a wine that has got a great deal of body

"It had, until she fished it out with her knitting needles," murmured the incor-Rutting hecales," marmured the incorsigible Claude.

But quite as much to the surprise of his host as of his hosters, Valentine Blake replied with thanks that he took neither wine nor spirits—a circumstance in itself pecaliar, but the result of which was absolutely therefore the description of the surprise results of the surprise results of the surprise results. unprecedented—for when Mrs. Murphy rose to depart, and Clande, with energetic politic-ness, epinang to tho, door to let her out, she expressed herself as follows:

expressed berself at follows:

. "Since you do not indulge in fermented liquors, Mr. Blake, and my husband is never content without his glass of spirits and water after dinner, this seems as good an opportunity as any for our having a little private talk together upon a matter which affects our common interests. I daresay you would not object to give me half an hour of your society in the drawing-room."

Mr. Blake bowed profoundly. Claude Murphy's bright, brown eyes opened to their fullest extent, and his lips emitted a long, low whistle. Master Woodford, who was wallowing in the dessert, hastily wiped his mouth with the back of his hand, and pre-pared to migrate to the drawing-room, for secrets were even dearer to him than preserved ginger.

"No, Woody," said she, "you will keep father company; and if I catch you listening at the door, I'll box your ears."

Ground-floor and first-floor, in one and the same dwelling-house, surely never held more and the same dwelling-house, surely never held the proper ill asserted neighbors and increase than did. a more ill-assorted pair apiece, than did that dining-room and back drawing-room in Rhadegund Street upon the evening in question; the one containing Claude and his cub. the one containing was the first guest the other Selina Murphy and her guest Valentine Blake. Between the former couple, there was little enough of talk; Claude sipped his whiskey and water, smiling to himself at the Indicrous behavior of Xantippe, or regarding Master Woody with half-shut the did with considerable deliberation, or regarding Master Woody with half-shut the room, not from impatience of the deby, from preserved ginger to damson cheese. like a horse which finds for the first time hath bean-chest and corn-bin with their lids and the first time hath bean-chest and corn-bin with their lids are considerable deliberation. The constant of the first time hath bean-chest and corn-bin with their lids are considerable deliberation. The constant of the c

Berning of the control of the contro need your aid to redress a wrong."

"So far, madam," observed Valentine Blake, simply, "I think I may say that I have qualifications for the task you propose

"You are friendless too, you tell me, sir," continued Selina, thoughtfully, "and have no relatives with whom to gossip about other people's business through the post. That is

'I mean, it is well for the presecution of the matter that I have in my mind," explained his hostess, quite unabashed. "In business-matters, all sentiment is out of place; and I honestly tell you, that I am glad that you are a benely man. If you were one like my husband, hand-in-glove with every steeping fellow you cannot grow and every specious fellow you came across, and 'hail-fellow-well-met' with every babbling drinker, you would not suit my plans. I daresay, if need were, now, you could keep

The lives of scores and scores of valiant men have more than once been preserved by my silence, madam, when the thumbserew and the scourge in vain invited me to

"I can believe it, sir," replied Selina, with enforced admiration. "You are one I do not doubt to stick to your colors; it is for that reason that I have chosen you to wear mine."

Valentine Blake bowed stifly,
"Madam, I have yet to learn the nature of the service you would impose upon me;
except at sea, we rarely act under scaled orders."

"And you are very poor," continued Selina musing, and without noticing his last remark. "That is well too. You would fain persuade me that you are honest also. Nay, sir, I do not question it: where honesty and self-interest pull the same way, there is no need to do so. You will go you thing by betraying me; you will indeed have nothing to betray; whereas, by being true, you will gain much." I shall be true, madam, never fear," observed the stranger, gravely. "But you have not yet mentioned the nature of the

"Let me first point out its advantages," esumed his hostess, quietly. "In the first dace, you will gain your livelihood: you rill have board and lodging and an ample neome. That is something, is it not?"

"It is a great deal, madam, indeed. Forrive me, however, if I anticipate your proresition. I conclude that you are about to ronor me with the offer of the post of tuter to your son. I regret to say I cannot accept that post. I do not intend to stay in town for any length of time."
"My son does not need a tutor, sir, his education being perfected," returned Schir-starchly; "and the situation which I am about to suggest for your neceptance is in the country—three hundred miles from Lou-You said that you had no objection to rate tutorship; you said that you could the rudiments of a commercial education. I am about to take you at your word, Now, look at this." She pulled out from tion. I am about to take you at your word, Now, look at this." She pulled out from her pocket a newspaper, folded down so as to mark a particular advertisement, and placed it in his hands:

WANTED—a Resident Tutor for a Young Gentleman (aged 17) of wayward habits, and whose education has been neglected. No person without decided consulting for the other son without decided capabilities for the office need apply. Some knowledge of commercial routine indispensable. Address Herbert War-ton, Eng., Sandalthwaite, Cumberland.

CHAPTER XXII.

ly, "without quite sceing, I confess, how the matter is to be brought about through the mediation of so humble an individual as myself, and a total stranger to all concerned, yet, if my services should prove the means of reconciling you to a brother, of healing an numatural feul.—"

an innatural feud..."
"I should curse you, sir." interposed Se-lina with energy, "to my dying day. Let us be frank with one another throughout this matter. I never wish to think of Ernest Woodford otherwise than as the base and perfidious reque I know him to be: I never wish to think of the woman he has twice taken to be his wife at all. But with regard to their son—my nephew—the case, as I have said, is different. You, who have no relatives, sir, may not be able to appreciate the saying that 'Blood is thicker than water,' but for your reserves. the saying that 'Blood is thicker than water,' but for my part I own, this spoiled, unhappy child—whom I have never seen, but the account of whose misdeeds has often reached my care—awakens in me the deepest interest," terest."

Ashamed, perhaps, of the gentle emotions that might be observable in her features, Mrs. Murphy set her face to the window, and turned her back upon her companion as and turned her back upon her companion as she proceeded: "Of wayward habita, sir, says that advertisement; alas, the truth is, that this young man, the only relative new left me in the world, except my Woodford, is vicious and abandoned to the last degree. is vicious and abandoned to the last degree. Without some such help as you can give him is speedily afforded, his ruin is certain; and the vast means of which he will be the possessor, will be the cause of immunerable evils to others as well as to himself. I know what sort of a bringing-up the poor lad must needs have had, and my heart has ro room to spare for censure; pity for his present, and apprehension for his future, is all I feel. Do I make my motives intelligible to you, Mr. Blake !

Mr. Blake?"
"Yes, indeed, madam," returned the young man gravely; "though such disinterestedness is rare. But how can you be sure that this appointment is not filled up, or that, if vacant, it will be given to one who has only your recommendation to back him?"

him?"
"It is not filled up, because the advertise-"It is not filled up, because the advertisement appeared in yesterday's paper for the first time, and in this journal only. It is no like my brother not to use the ordinary channels. You will find him wedded to commetce—and better for him if he had taken no other wife. Short-sighted, yet scheming fool! What was I enying? Ah, the tutorship. You have credentials, teatimonials of some rort, I conclude? Good. The c and your priority of application will without deaths secure the post. Only, whatever you do, whether now or hereafter, see that i an never breathe my name, or him she on hever breathe my name, or hint at a known me or my husband. To do matter how sure you may deen your a would be to leave Dewbank Hall with. There is a god the world be to have been a world be to heave the beautiful that perhapith. There is a girl there, by the by a woman she must be by this time—niout whom I should put you on your guard. Are you weak, Mr. Valentine Blake, with Ale you weak, Mr. Valentine Blake, with respect to young-lady dolla? I am sorry to see you blush: I should have thought you had been above such follies."

"If I blush, madam, it is for another reason than that which your words imply. However charming this young lady may turn out on acquaintance, my affections are pre-engaged." engaged.

am glad of it," replied Mrs. Murphy, sharply; "though she was not charming when I knew her, nor did she give any pro-mise of being so. She was, however, a hold and obstinate child, likely enough to grow up both dangerous and desig dag."

For the first time throughout their talk, there came into Valentine Blake's eyes a cold blue gleam like the glitter of a wood.

"Is the young lady, ten, a kingwaman of yours, many."

condition to add, in case I should accept your offer.

"I have mentioned that of secrecy," re-turned Selina, thoughtfully. "It is under-stood that nobody shall know that I recom-

Some productive and independent accorated by the second of the control of the con

"I have mentioned that of secrety, tearned Selan, thoughtfully. "It is understood that moledly shall know that I recommended you for the signation."

"Nobody but your husband, madam; I am under some obligation to his kindness, and it is imperative that I should be fravibly the place of the which him in the matter."

"And are you not under some obligation to see?" very lead Mrs. Murphy, with uritation. "Don't I give you the place? And can I I take it away from you again, that is, could not I find means to let my brother wouthon? Come, I don't wish to threaten the most you do not under some obligation to see?" which is perpetually displaying the place of the good of the which is perpetually displaying the place? And are you not under some obligation to see?" which is perpetually displaying the place? And are you not under some obligation to see and the place? And the place of the good and prome the bowed of the could not I find means to let my brother you then be given by the place? And in the place of the good and great—but there are none. The field upon its marble pedestal could not to see the place of the good and great—but there are none. The field upon its marble pedestal could not consent to share a secret with him wife unknown to him."

"Because, malane, went of he had not shown kinself my french, I could not consent to share a secret with him wife unknown to him."

"Because, malane, went is the work in an extensive the place of very way. It would be well to answer the may be a seen to she with the second to the content of him, and the place of the good and pread-take way; we, of course, see no harm in that, would be well to answer the treaty of the place of the good and pread-take way; we should be a sell to answer the heart would be well to answer the heart should be well to answer the law to make the would are the place of the good and great place of the good and gr here it is a second of the lapse of an ever yet had a lover. Are they quite certain upon this point?—and that merry hearted Frank Grey, who was sent to see the second of the lapse of the second of the lapse of the second of the lapse of the second of the country correspondent."

"Just so," replied School enjoy; "and would also represent the remaining the forethe news of his death care, would also represent the remaining the never mentions his name, exand the constitution of that to the contract of the three points are the points of the three points are the points of the three points are the points of the three points are th

The Young Lady
WHO IS AN OLD MAID.

Let us ack whem we will for a description of nid maids, and the answer will be for the most part the same. We shall be told that admire so much. And I am not the least disappointed—she is very lovely. Do you not think so?"

"Yes, certainly," replied her companion.
"Nay, how coidly you answer!"
"Did I? But, in good truth, dearest, I have a strange prejudice against all women who write—elever women, as they are termed—and would not marry one for the whole world."

Just at that moment, the dancers were

ON A SPITEFUL LETTER.

BY ALFRED TENNYSON, D. C. L.

Here, it is here-the close of the year, And with it a spiteful letter, y fame in song has done him much wrong, For himself has done much better. My fame in sor

O, foolish bard, is your lot so hard, If men neglect your pages?
I think not much of yours or of mine;
I hear the roll of ages.

This fallen leaf, isn't fame as brief? My rhymes may have been the stronger, Yet hate me not, but abide your lot; I last but a moment longer.

O, faded leaf, isn't fame as brief? What room is here for a hater? Yet the yellow leaf hates the greener leaf, For it hangs one moment later, Greater than 1-isn't that your cry ! And I shall live to see it Well, if it be so, so it is, you know; And if it be so—so be it!

O, Summer leaf, isn't life as brief? But this is the time of hollies: And my heart, my heart is an evergreen, I hate the spites and the follies.

Check Valves for Furnaces. In conversing with a friend, recently, upon the different modes of warming houses, he gave us a bit of information which is valuable, and which he has kindly written out as follows:

it as follows:—
My hot-air furnace, used for warming the

THE LADY'S FRIEND.

Splendid Inducements for 1868.

The proper tors of this "Queen of the Month boostoo the following possible for next year:-

A DEAD MAN'S RULE. By Elizabeth Presects, author of "How a Woman had Her Way," &c., THE DEBARRY FORTUNE. By Amanda M.

Douglas, author of "In Trust," "Stephen Dane," &c., FLEEING FROM FATE, By Louise Chandler Monitor, author of "June Clifford," &c.

These will be accompanied by numerous short stories, pooms, &c., by Florence Percy, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, Miss Amanda M. Douglas, Mics V. F. Townsend, August Bell Mrs. Hopen & March 1988. Bell, Mrs. Hasmer, Frances Lee, &c., &c., The Lady's Friend is edited by Mrs. HENLY PETERSON, and nothing but what is of a refund and elevating character is allowed entrence into its

The Fashions, Fancy Work, &c.

A Splendid double page finely colored Fashiot will illustrate each number. Also other engravines, illustrating the latest potterns of Dresses, Cloude, Bonn is, Head-dresses, Fancy Work, Embroidery, &c.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVINGS.

The beautiful steel engravings which adorn The Lady's Friend are, we think, anequalled.

TERMS: 52.50 A YEAR.

SPLENDID PREMIUM OFFERS

We offer for THE LADY'S VRIEND precisely the same premiums (In all respects) as are offered for THE POST. The lists can be made up either of the Magazine, or of the Magazine and Paper conjointly, as may be desired.

The Terms for Clabs of THE LADY'S PRIEND are also processly the same as for THE FOST and the Clubs also can be made up for both Magazine and Paper conjointly it desired. The Post will always be entirely different. Specimen numbers sent on receipt of 15 etc.

> DEACON & PETERSON. No. 319 Walnut St., Philadelphia.

THOSE BUTCHERS' BILLS.

Those butchers' bills! those butchers' bills! How many a mind their total fills, Reflecting, at this costly time, On loin and leg, on coarse and prime!

Those happy days are passed away, When sixpence round we used to pay, And sometimes, if the joint was veal, A sweetheart graced the closing meal.

And so 'twill be when we are gone, Those butchers still will lay it on; And other bards, with other quills, Will write about their heavy bills.—Punch.

the winter about their heavy bills.—Princh.

13. A highly reputed work on the "English Constitution," by Walter Bagshot, just published in London, gravely announces that the emission of paper money is one of the prerogatives of the President of the United States. "That this power to issue greenbacks is decided to belong to the President as Commander-in-Chief of the army; it is part of what is called the 'war power,'"

13. Of all learning, the most difficult department is to unlearn; drawing a mistake partment is to unlearn; drawing a mistake or prejudice out of the head is as painful as drawing a tooth, and the patient never thanks the operator.

thanks the operator.

D The Philadelphia Free Masons are to take five years to build a $150,000 temple, with a tower three hundred feet high.

C* A man in Havana recently attempted

An Underground River.

An Underground River.

The Fremont (Ohio) Journal says:—"It is not generally known that there exists, about a mile west of Fremont, a remarkable underground stream, with a swift current, and no outlet above the surface of the ground this side of Lake Erie. It was discovered several years ago on a farm north of the Four Mile House, now owned by widow Sheffer, by a man who was returning from a Sheffer, by a man who was returning from a Sheffer, by a man who was returning from a day's chopping in the woods. In walking over a slightly sunken place he noticed a hollow sound, and turning, struck the ground with his axe. The axe broke through and disappeared, and never has been heard from since. Further investigations showed a rock about six feet below the surface, with a crevice a foot or more wide in which was a crevice a foot or more wide, in which wa-ter could be seen several feet below. By tracing its course further down and breaking through the crust, the same phenome-non appeared again, and by dropping a piece of wood or other floating substance in the upper aperture, it was soon seen to pass to the lower one, showing a strong current. A lower one, showing a strong current. A lead and line let down to the depth of seventy feet found no bottom. The supply of water is only slightly affected by drought, and a pump set up in one of the places above mentioned, has furnished the purest water to the whole neighborhood during the late dry season. It is certainly a premarkable. late dry season. It is certainly a remarkable

Wood Wall Paper.

A Boston newspaper mentions a very deli cate, ingenious and beautiful machine, which has recently been constructed. This ma-chine will take a portion of a tree, after it has been cut the right length and width, and shave it up into thin ribbons as wide as a roll of house paper, making one hundred or one hundred and fifty to the inch. These rolls of wood are placed on walls by paper hangers with paste and brush, precisely in the same manner as paper. The wood is wet when used, and really works easier than paper, because it is much more tough and pliable. In these days, when variety is sought for, one can finish the walls of his house in different woods, to suit his taste. One room can be finished in bird's-eye maple One room can be mansaed in bird's eye maple, another in chestnut, another in cherry, another in white wood. Thus there is no imitation, but the genuine article is upon the walls. The longer the wood hanging remains on the wall, the more distinct will be the grain and color of the wood.

From the Sunday Dispatch, N. Y. City. The Japan and Oolong teas, which are being sold by the Great American Tea Com-pany, at Nos. 31 and 33 Vesey street, have received the unqualified approval of our citizens who drain the "cup which cheers but not inchriates." As the company purchases its teas direct from the Asiatic factors, without paying a profit to middlemen, it can afford to sell the genuine, unadulterated article cheaper than other dealers do drugged and doctored trash. To buy cheaply and surely, go to Nos. 31 and 33 Vesey street.

They call betting out West, "putting a pecuniary estimate on one's opinion."

"James Bennett, of Lexington, Ky., has got his twelfth wife.

"A Frenchman has recently made a great discovery. It is of special value to parents, as it refers to the case of perversity in turbulent children. Suppose a boy of seven years old has been "carrying on."

The father simply says: "John, you have been a bad boy to-day; I shall take off a year from your age. You are now not more than six years old." In every east the young rebel subsides into angelic docility, contingent on the father's restoring to him again the missing year.

tingent on the father's restering to him again the missing year.

23° Joe S — resides in Southern Oregon. When his wife arrived in San Francisco, en route to join her lord, a gentleman asked her if she came by water. "Yes, I came by steamboat." "What steamship?" "Well, I don't know what the name on it was; Sary Navady (Sierra Necada) was on to the blankets, but I don't r'ally know whether 'twas the name of the chambermoid, or the name of the steamboat!"

23° An impudent fellow recently asked Mile Dejazet her age. She for an instant looked him full in the face, throwing all the Mile. Dejazet her age. She for an instant looked him full in the face, throwing all the intensity of her famous impertment look into her eyes; and then she archly smiled, and said: "I am told, sir, I so often make other people forget how old I am, that I think I may be excused if I don't call to remembrance the date of my birth."

The transmitted of the date of my birth."

13" Economy was exemplified in the case of the man who had occasion to place marble slabs for counters in his store, and had them made in the form of gravestones, with the names and epitaphs of his family inscribed on the under with

I'm It does not follow that two persons are fit to marry because both are good. Milk are it to marry because both are good. Alls is good and so is mustard, but they are not good for each other.

The following remarkable operation was lately performed by a German surgeon:
One of his patients, wounded by a ball in the region of the stomach, had long ballled his skill. The ball could not be cut out, because its precise location was not to be accerskill. The ball could not be cut out, because its precise location was not to be ascertained by external search. So, with the consent of the suffering patient, he proceeded to inquire within. This was effected by introducing into the essophagus (the passage leading from the throat to the stomach) a small glass tube, into which he passed an electric current, and placing the patient nucle in a dark place, the luminous power of the electric spark rendered the illuminated region sufficiently transparent to enable the surgeon to determine the exact spot occupied by the ball. So, withdrawing the electric light, be cut the ball out with ease and safety.

A SAM PLES

SAMPLES

SAMPLES

SENT FREE.*

A sample of Pref. ROBIES CURING IE will be sent free to any address. The Centage will cori the straightest hair on the first application (without minute) in sort insuriant, be satisful dowing curis. Address, with stamp, Prof. B. H. ROBE, Parkman, Juni 18-2m

FREE GIFTS TO ALL!

A SAM PLES

A sample of Pref. ROBIES CURING IE will be sent free to any address. The Centage will cori the straightest hair on the first application (without minute) in sort insuriant, be satisful dowing curis. Address, with stamp, Prof. B. H. ROBE, Parkman, Juni 18-2m

FREE GIFTS TO ALL!

A SAM PLES

A sample of Pref. ROBES CURING IE will be sent free to any address. The Centage will cori the straightest hair on the first application (without minute) in sort insuriant, be satisful dowing curis. Address, with stamp, Prof. B. H. ROBE, Parkman, Juni 18-2m

FREE GIFTS TO ALL!*

A SAM PLES

A sample of Pref. ROBES CURING IE will be sent free to any address. The Centage will cori the straightest hair on the first application (without minute) in sort insuriant, be satisful dowing curis. Address, with stamp, Prof. B. H. ROBE, Parkman, Juni 18-2m

FREE GIFTS TO ALL!*

A SAM PLES

A sample of Pref. ROBES CURING IE will be sent free to any address. The Centage will cori the straightest hair on the first application (without

An old lady, a professor of the washer-FREE OF COST!

From one or two days' service in any town or villages and barn in the country. One afternoon, soon after she was comfortably established in her new home, a black cloud was seen in the west, and before many minutes a tornado swept through her small property, scattering the timber of her little farm in every direction. Coming out of her kitchen and seeing the devastation the storm had made, the old lady at first could not find words to express her indignation, but at last she exclaimed:

"Well, here's a pretty business. No mat-"Well, here's a pretty business. No matter, though, I'll pay for this—I'll wash on Sunday!" Springfield, Vt. Springfield, Vt.

Rates of Advertising.

Thirty cents a line for the first insertion. Twenty cents for each additional insertion Payment is required in advance

Faith in Medicines.

Dr. Francis E. Austic recently delivered a lecture at the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons in London in which he said:
"With regard to fevers, but also very with regard to fevers, but also very the college of the said in the college of th "With regard to fevers, but also very strongly with reference to acute visceral inflammations, the opinion has become general that the natural course of the disorder is toward recovery, and that any medicinal interference with it is worse than useless."

Dr. A. also in the same address states that there are few practitioners who have not felt that they had in treating many diseases been of less use to the patient than the nurse. Dr. James G. Glover says, in The Lancet for October, that "in not a few of the best minds of the profession there is great loss of faith in the utility of medicines, and the only materia medica believed in is food and

The song, "Dear Mother, I've Come Home to Die," is a happy illustration of American assurance. Our young go abroad to spend the hard earnings of the old folks, and, when they are dead broke, return home to be buried at the expense of their impoverished parents. poverished parents.

THE MARKETS

THE MARKETS.

FLOUR—The market has been duil. Sales 6000 bbls, to the retailers and bakers, at $7,5068,35 for superfue; $8,5069,95 for extra; $106,01,15 for low grade and fancy northwest family; $10,506512 for Penna family, and $106,015 for Oble tamily and $126,114,25 bbl for laney brands, according to quality. Rev Flour—250 bbls rold at $8,5069,95 bbl. GRAIN—The demand for Wheat has fullen off. $0,000 bas of sonthern and Penna red rold at $2,5768, 2,55 for choice; $2,4062,25 for fair to prime; $2,2566, 2,55 for common, and $1,80 for interior. White ranges from $2,805,2,30 for fair to prime; $2,2566, 2,55 for common, and $1,80 for interior. White ranges from $2,805,2,30 for fair to prime; $2,2566, 2,55 for common, and $1,80 for interior. White ranges from $2,805,2,30 for fair to prime; $2,2566, 2,55 for common, and $1,80 for interior. White ranges from $2,805,2,30 for sold in lots at $1,3566, 1,57 g bms. Corn—Sales of 5000 bms old yellow at $1,3264, 1,8, as to condition, and 20,000 bms of new western mixed at $1,3566, 1,77 g bms. Oats—25,000 bms sold at $66,78c gb bushel.

PROVISIONS—The market continues duil. Sales of Pork at $20 for old, and $22,50 for new; $11,50 for prime do; and $18 for prime. Mess Berd, City packed, sells at $22,622,50. Dressed Bors soil at $86,60 for prime do; and $18 for prime. Mess Berd, City packed, sells at $22,622,50. Dressed Bors soil at $86,60 for head, and $1,50 for head soil at $2,50 for low $11,50 for New Orleans. As at $2,60 for the and block of $6,0 for head $

PHILADELPHIA CATTLE MARKETS.

The supply of Beef Cattle during the past week amounted to about 1900 head. The prices realized from 10.20 lets # D. 900 Cows brough: from $45 to 70 \(\text{if head} \). Sheep—5000 head were disposed of at from 56.7 cts \(\text{if head} \) b. 4500 Hogs sold at from $10,50 to 11,60 \(\text{if head} \).

THE QUINTETTE ORCHESTRA.

A collection of Quadrilles, Contra-Dances, Waltzes Polkas, Polka Redowns, Schottisches, Mazourkas and Serenade pieces, arranged for Two Violins, Clari ct. Cornet and Bass. In five books, one for each ent. Price of the set $6. Sent, post-paid, on receipt of OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, 277 Washington Street, Boston. CHARLES H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

AGENTS.

LLOYD'S $100,000 REVOLVING DOUBLE MAPS OF EUROPE AND AMERICA are just only $4. 3,000,000 names on them. "How to canvass well" sent. Ladies and men $20 a day made. LaCyD, No. 23 Cortlandt 81., New York.

Maple Leaves for 1368.

A new, instructive and entertaining ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY greatly enlarged and improved. Specimens, with terms and rare inducaments to agents, 10 cents. Send at once to BLACKIE & CO., 746 Broadway, New York.

THE SECOND SESSION OF LECTURES In the PHILADSLPHIA UNIVERSITY OF MEDICINE AND STREET COMMERCES Jan. 1st. MEDICINE AND S. GERY commences data ista-ists. Located, Np. TH AND LOCUST.—The above Institution has been thoroughly reorganized, and holds four sessions of lectures each year, embracing ten monitor of medical instruction. Under the new organization students can enter the College at any time during its session. No previous medical study is required, as all branches of medicine are taught, It has an able corps of professors and teachers, thus furnishing taulities for a regular and thorough medi-cal and regularly dependent. Pers that scholarship to furnishing facilities for a regular and thorough medi-culand surjical education. Perpetual scholarship to the University $75 for first course, and $50 for second course students. W. PAINE, M. D. Dean, novoo-ty UNIVERSITY BUILDING, Phirads.

Amount.

FREE OF COST!

540 MILES

OF THE

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

Running West from Omaha

ACROSS THE CONTINENT,

ARE NOW COMPLETED.

THE TRACK BEING LAID AND TRAINS RUNNING

Within Ten Miles of the Summit OF THE HOCKY MOUNTAINS.

The remaining ten miles will be finished as soon as the weather permits the road-boil to be sufficiently packed to receive the ralls. The work continues to be pushed forward in the rock cuttings on the west-ern slope with unabated energy, and a much larger force will be employed during the current year than ever before. The prospect that the whole was never better. The means so far provided tor con-struction have proved ample, and there is no lack of funds for the most vigorous prosecution of the enter-These means are divided into four classes:

GRAND LINE TO THE PACIFIC

● WILL BE COMPLETED IN 1870,

1 .--- UNITED STATES BONDS,

Having thirty years to run, and bearing six per cent. currency interest, at the rate of $15,000 per mile for 517 miles on the Plains; then at the rate of $48,000 per mile for 150 miles through the Rocky Mountains; then at the rate of $22,000 per mile for the remaining distance, for which the United States takes a so lien as security. The interest on these Bonds is paid by the United States government, which also pays the Company one-half the amount of its bills in money for transporting its freight, troops, mails, &c. The remaining half these bills is placed to the Company's credit, and forms a sinking fund which man finally discharge the whole amount of this lieu.

2 .-- FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

By its charter the Company is permitted to issue own First Mortgage Bonds to the same amount as the bonds issued by the government, and no me and only as the road progresses. The Trustees for the Bondnolders, are the Hon, E. D. Moryan, U. S. Senator from New York, and the Hon, Oakes Ames, Member of the U. S. House of Representatives, who are responsible for the delivery of these Bonds to the Company in accordance with the terms of the law.

3 .-- THE LAND GRANT. .

The Union Pacific Railroad Company has a land grant or absolute donation from the government of 12,800 acres to the mile on the line of the road, which will not be worth less than $1.50 per acre, at the lowest valuation.

4 --- THE CAPITAL STOCK.

The authorized capital of the Union Pacific Railroad Company is $100,000,000, of which have been paid on the work already done.

The Means Sufficient to Build the Road.

Contracts for the entire work of building 914 miles of first-class railroad west from Omaha, comprising much of the most difficult mountain work, and embracing every expense except surveying, have been made with responsible parties (who have already finished over 540 miles), at the average rate of sixtyeight thousand and fifty-eight dollars ($65,650) per struction and repairs of cars, depots, stations, and all other incidental buildings, and also locomotive, passenger, bargage, and freight cars, and other r-quisites rolling stock, to an amount that shall not be se than $5,000 per mile. Allowing the cost of the naining one hundred and eighty-in of the eleven odred miles assumed to be built, by the Union Pathe Company to be $18,000 per mile

The Total Cost of Eleven Bundred

Company's own First Mortgage Bonds have a ready market, we have as the Available Cash Resources for Building Lieven Hundred Miles:

Capital Stock paid in on the work now

The Company have ample facilities for supplying any deficiency that may arise in means for construc-tion. This may be done whally or in part by additional subscriptions to capital stock,

EARNINGS OF THE COMPANY.

At present, the profits of the Company are derived only from its local traffic, but this is already much more than sufficient to pay the interest on all the Bonds the Company can issue, if not another mile were built. It is not doubted that when the road is completed the through traffic of the only line con-necting the Atlantic and Pacific States will be large beyond precedent, and, as there will be no compet tion, it can always be done at profitable rates.

It will be noticed that the Union Pacific Hallroad is, in fact, a Government Work, built under the supervision of Government officers, and to a large extent with Government money, and that its bonds are issued under Government direction. It is be lieved that no similar security is so carefully guard of, and certainly no other is based upon a larger or there valuable property. As the Company's are offered for the present at

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

90 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR,

they are the chespest security in the market, being more than 15 per cent. lower than U. S. Stocks.

SIX PER CENT. IN GOLD, or over NINE PER CENT. upon the invest-ment, and have thirty years to run before maturity. Subscriptions will be received in Philadelphia by DE HAVEN & BROTHER, 40 South Third ... WILLIAM PAINTER & CO., 36 South Third pt., J. E. LEWARS & CO., 20 South Third street, SMITH, RANDOLPH & CO., 16 South Third et., In Wilmington, Delaware, by R. R. ROBINSON & CO.,

JOHN McLEAR & SON., And in New York at the Company's Office, No. 20 Nassau street, and by

CONTINENTAL NATIONAL BANK, No. 7 Nas

CLARK, DODGE & CO., Bankers No. 51 Wall st., JOHN J. CISCO & SON, Bankon, No. 33 Wall st., and by the Company's advertised Agents throughout the United States. Remittances should be made in drafts or other funds par in New York, and the bonds will be sent free of charge by return express. Parties subscribing through local agents, will look to them for their safe delivery. A NEW PAMPHLET AND MAP, showing the Progress of the Work, Resources for Construction, and Value of Bonds, may be obtained of the Com-pany's Offices, or of its advertised Agents, or will be sent free on application

JOHN J. CISCO, Treasurer,

NEW YORK. January 8th, 1968,

PALMER (1866) PATENTS. BEST IN USE PRINCIPAL OFFICE 1609 CHESTNUT STREET PHILADELPHIA.

DR. B. FRANK, PALMER, PHES A.A.LIMR CS

These inventions stand approved as the "best" by a most eminent Scientific and Surgical Societies of These inventions stand approved as the "best" by the most eminent Scientific and Surgical Societies of the world, the inventor having been honored with the award of FFFTY GOLD AND SHAVER MEDALS or "First Prizes", including the GREAT MEDALS or the Wolt D'S EXHIBITIONS IN LONDON AND NEW YORK; also the most Ho-norary Report of the great SOCIETY OF SUR-GEONS OF PARIS, giving his Patents place above the ENGLISH and PRENCH.

the ENGLISH and FIENCH.

DR. PALMER gives personal situation to the basiness of his profession, aided by men of the best qualifications and greatest experience. He is operative commissioned by the GOV ERNMENT, and has the patronage of the prominent OFFICERS of the ARMY and NAVY. SIX MAJOINGERIKALS and more than a thousand less distinguished officers and soldiers have worn the PALMER LIMBS on active duty, while still greater numbers of eminent civilians are, by their aid, filling important positions, and effectually conceal their misiortune.

All Genuine "PALMER LIMBS" have the

All Genuine "PALMER LIMBS" have the Pamphlets, which contain the New Rules for tempelations, and full internation for persons in cant of limbs, cut free to applicants, by mail of therwise.

The attention of Surgeons, Physicians, and all persons interested, is most respectfully solicited.

The well-known LINCOLN AIM is also made of the Surgeons, This Arm has the parronage of the U. S. GOVERNMENT. To avoid the Imposition of PIRATICAL COPY. ISTN, apply only to Da. PALSIER, as above directed.

BELLS.

TROY BELL FOUNDRY.

CRITICAL VIRGILIAN, Character Factories, Academias,

TITLEY WARRANTED. Fast in Clans

UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE AND

FEMALE SUFFRAGE.

By a Republican (not a "Radical")

This is a femo, containing 116 pages, and is de$19,724,000

52,525,900

6,525,000

6,525,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,125,000

1,1

DO YOU WANT TEETH OF PEARL

LADIES AND GENTLEHEN EMPLOY

WANTED, AGLATS (Male or Female) Cun open Spire week at their own home, in a light and homerable inscises. Address, sending two stamps for full particulars. E. E. LOCKWOOD, decreed Detroit, Michagan.

(Established 1861.) THE GREAT AMERICAN

Tea Company

HAVE JUST RECEIVED

TWO FULL CARGOES OF THE FINEST NEW CROP TEAS.

In addition to these targe cargoes of Black and Japan Fore, the Company are constantly receiving large in-recipies of the many quality of Green Teasfrom the Mo-countries of Chams, which are surveited for fine-ment of the company of Ravor, which they are selling at

lowing prices | Clots : Hanks, Sec . Sec . You., Me., Inc., Last #1 Ditartor (mass), see, see, see, see, res., see, we, best $1 is in Bills ONPOWDER. 125, best $1 50 W B

Coffees Roasted and Ground Daily.

GROUND COFFEE, No., No., No., No., host the per b. thatele, Sahoma, Boardung house keepers, and Fa-milies who use large quantition of Coffee, one geome-mics in that article by using our FRENCH BREAN FAST and DINNER COFFEE, which we see I at the ow prime of No. per pound, and warrant to give perfect attalaction. ROASTED UNGROUND COFFEE - De Me, best GREEN UNROASTED COFFEE-2's .. Do . Es .. continues can save from 50c, to $1 per Co, by puraisa

GREAT AMERICAN TEA CO.,

Nos. 31 and 33 VESEY STREET. Post office Box, 864; New York City

Post other Blox, 6843 New York City.

We warrant all the goods we sell to give entire aging faction. If they are not satisfactory they can be returned in the agency of the give and have the torse of the country, consumers in all parts of the United States can receive their Fear at the same prices with the gunst indictional expense of irrapportation as though they bought them arbur warehouses in this city.

The sought them arbur warehouses in this city.

The city is a published in this paperor to our circulars, which is complete to the same, kinds, and swonnts planty on a list, and when the cut is complete send it to us by small, and we will gut such partir's goods in separate pschapse, used by the sold partir's goods in separate pschapse, used by the sold partir's goods in separate pschapse, used by the sold partir's goods in separate pschapse, used by the sold partir's goods in separate pschapse, used by carding a partir goods of the countries are considered as a second of transportation the members of the Club can divide equitation when you have considered can be sent by fraction to New York, by post office money orders, or by fraction New York, by post office money orders, or by fraction to word the countries of the city of the party vectors of the city of the party ve

N. H - Air villages and towns where a large nur N. H.— All villages and towns where a large number and to publish baseless, our related by ord their Fear and Coffees about one third (heard) to their Fear and Coffees about one third (heard) to "The Great Attenders The Company of their their the Fear Attenders The Company of their their

GREAT AMERICAN TEA COMP'Y, Nos. 31 and 33 VESEY ST.,

NEW YORK. Post office Hox, 5643 New York City,

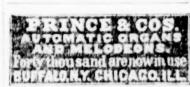

Inventor of the celebrated GOSSAMER VENTI-LATING WIG and ELASTIC BAND TOTPACES, Instructions to enable Ladles and Centlemen to measure their own heads with accuracy.

For Wigs, Inches,
No. 1.—The round of the head,
"2. From furthend over the head to neck in Firm early to the lead to over the lead to neck in Firm early to the lead to the lead to the lead to the lead."

So I.—From further to the lead to neck in Firm early to the lead.

Made of Pure Bell Metal, Burn to the Manager of the sale a sphendel stock of Cents' Wins Touges, Lodde's Wage, Half Wigs, From the Wins Paragraph with Paragraph portage, and as cheap as any establishment to the Luion. In the result and put of the world will result to the Manager of the William and Manager o

JONES & CO., Trev. N. Y Hair.

THE BOWEN MICROSCOPE,

the Gent Sciences Sharpeter, Buth and Hipper, symbiled, 20 rents I cuts from Mrs. ANNA SMP/H. 23 Parkman St., Cleveland, Oulo.

A GENTS WANTED. Our agents say there is an increase made and better satisfaction given schilling frak infalls PATEST FIGTI BE HIGI DER, then any other agency business known. Descriptive Carrylor scut free, Address A. BARBER & BRID. BOYLETTER.

(*OLD1 GOLD1 My GOLDEN COMPON ND Will force the heard to grow on the smoothest face, or hair on the heidest head in 11 days, thick and heavy in early case, or money refunded. Next by mail, profits paid, for his cents a package, or a

WIT AND HUMOR.

Hard to Please.

Pitts is a fast man, a sharp man, a business man, an i when Pitts goes into a stage to trade he always gets the lowest each price, and he says—"Well, I'd look about, and if I don't find anything that suits me better I'll call and take this."

Pitts, like all fast men, is partial to women, and young ones in particular. Now, quite lately, Pitts said to himself—"I am getting rather 'iong in years, and guess I'll get married."

His business qualities wouldn't let him wait, so off he travels, and calling upon a

His business qualities wouldn't let him wait, so off he travels, and calling upon a lady friend, opened conversation by remarking that he would like to know what she thought about his getting married. "Oh, Mr. Pitts, that is an affair in which I am not so very greatly interested, and I prefer to leave it with yourself." "But," says Pitts, "you are interested; and, my dear girl, will ou marry me?"

The young lady blushed very red, hesita ted, and finally, as Pitts was very well to do in the world, and morally, financially and do in the world, and incently, manciany and politically of good standing in society, she accepted him; whereupon the matter-of-fact Pitts responded—" Well, well, I'll look about, and if I don't find anybody that suits me better than you, I'll come back."

Seeing the Chips Fly.

Some years ago, a young New Englander found himself in the back part of Pennsylvania, ashore as to the means of living. In this strait he applied to a wealthy Quaker in the neighborhood for help. • I will furnish thee with work, and will pay thee for it, friend," said the Quaker, "but it is not my custom to give alms to one that is able to laber like thee."

"Well, that's all I want," said the Yankee; "of course, I'm willing to work."
"What can thee do, friend?"
"I will do anothing to get a little money.

"What can thee do, friend?"
"I will do anything to get a little money to help me out of my difficulties."
"Well, there's a log youder, and there is an axe. Thee may pound on the log with the head of the axe, and if thee is diligent and faithful, I will pay thee a dollar a day."
"Agreed, I'd as soon do that as anything."

Agreed, I'd as soon do that as anything

And so the youth went to work and pounded lustily with the head of the axe upon the log. After a little time he paused to take breath, then he began again.

But after an hour he stopped, threw down the axe impatiently, and walked away, saying, "Till be hanged if I'll cut wood without secting the chips fly."

The Captain's Thour.—A pentleman who resides in a neighboring town, tells' a good story about one of his trouting excursions. He was about setting off, with a friend, for a day's fishing, when an acquaint ance, an old see captain, drove up, and was invited to join them. The captain said he should be happy to go, for he had never caught a trout in his life—and being furnished with rod and line, they all set off together. Arrived at the brook they separated, one going above and the other below, leaving the captain to try his luck where he was After an hour or two had passed, the was After an hour or two had passed, the gentleman who was fishing above the cap-tain, came within hall and asked him if he had caught anything.

"No," replied the captain, "it's these confounded things that jump off the bank and go kerchag into the water, that you're after, nin's it's"

YOUNG AMERICA.

Considerate Nephew. "Now, aunt, if you feel at all nervous, you know, I'll change horses with you directly."

PIDELITY.

Love me for my love to thee, Other claim is not in me; Youth and beauty both are flown, Mirth and zest of joy are gone, Tircless Love remains alone.

Love me for my love to thee Parted on life's main are we: Ships that sailed the North Sea track, When the summer wind fell slack Frozen each in separate pack

Love me, dear, as I love thee, Patiently my lot I dree; Watching how the angels' bands, From Time's loosely shifting sands, Spin the everlasting strands.

I don't like to talk against my mother, but I feel bound to expose her unequal manner of dealing with members of the family. We are a large family. Some of us are weak, others strong; some of us are inclined to be steady and well behaved, others too are dis-solute. What puzzles me is the partiality solute. What puzzles me is the partiality which my mother shows towards certain of her children, and the harshness with which she treats others. One of my big brothers stays up until about four c-clock every morning, drinks twelve or thirteen hot whiskey punches, and in the morning my mother simply pinches his car and says, "Oh, you naughty boy!" One of my younger brothers has careful size of receives the cheef day. ate a small slice of roast park the other day, and thus offended my mother. She, almost immediately after discovering what he had and go kerching into the water, that you're after, ain'; it''

Hoesac TENNEL.—Years ago, when the project of a route to the West through the Hoesac Mountain was first started, the late Rev Thomas Whittemore, President of the Verrount and Massachuseits Railroid, was in the western part of the state, and an enthasiastic funnel near was arriving the importance and feasibility of the enterprise.

"Why," said he, "look at the route. It seems as if the Enger of Providence had pointed if out."

"What a pity," said the old minister, "the sager havis them rountleaves the manne fam."

"What a pity," said the old minister, "the sager havis them rountleaves the manne fam." thereache tangle near was recommended in the content family of the eruptions, and other diseases, and shows a little charity towards her children. Her chil-dren, however, must, each one for himself, talk to his mother, and try to understand the rules which she has laid down for him individually, instead of thinking that what applies to one applies to all.

HYMENIAL WIT.-A Virginia paper gets off the following: Neill-Tier. On Wednesday, Mr. William Neill to Miss Jane Tier.

A sad event, we rather fear. She turned to kneel and dropped a tear.

Wright-Buck. On Monday, by the Rev. Mr. Seals, Henry W. Wright to Miss Orila

The parson seals their fate-'tis very clear, right for once the luck has got its t⊕ The surest way of governing both a private family and a kingdom, is for a hus-band and a prince to yield at certain times something of their prerogative.

INSTABILITY.

Drift away, drift away, Drift to the barren and homeless sea; ome men can neither be staff nor stay, And I think they are made like thee.

That sways on the Gulf-stream east and west, Where often a land-bird will perch to feed, But never to build its nest.

Drift, thou purposeless, languid waif; Drift to the great world's lonesome ser ome day regard in thy heart will chafe, To have drifted so weak from me!

AGRICULTURAL.

The Teeth of the Horse.

The Teeth of the Horse.

A liouse has forty teeth—twenty-four double teeth, or granders, four tushes, or single file teeth, and twelve front teeth, called gatherers. As a general thing, marea have no tushes. Between two and three years old, the colt sheds his four middle teeth—two above, and two below. After three years old, two other teeth are changed, one on each side of those formerly shed; he now has eight colt's teeth, and eight horse's teeth. When four years of age he cuts four new teeth. At five years old the horse sheds his remaining colt's teeth, four in number, when his tushes are up, appearing white, small and sharp, while a small circle of young growing teeth is observable. The mouth is now complete. At eight years of age the teeth have filled up, the horse is aged, and his mouth is said to be full.—Turf, Field and Farm.

The work of recovering the Great Desert of Sahara, in Africa, is steadily going on in Algeria under the patronage of Napoleon III., and is accomplished by boring artesian wells. About one hundred wells are now flowing, reclaiming the desert wherever they have and making the barren waste blossom are, and making the barren waste blossom are. are, and making the barren waste blossom into fertile gardens. In the district of Ouled Rir, stretching far southward into the desert, there are now thirty-five wells, around which 2,000 gardens have been formed, and 140,000 date trees planted. The conquest of the desert is steadily pushed with almost universal success by four military boring brigades, thoroughly equipped and provided with the necessary implements. with the necessary implements.

To CLEAN CLOCKS.—A correspondent, writing to the Scientific American, says:— "Common brass clocks may be cleaned by immersing the works in boiling water. Rough as this treatment may appear, it works well and I have for many years past boiled my clocks whenever they stop from an accumulation of dust or thickening of oil upon the pivots. They should be boiled in pure rain water and dried on a warm stove or near the fire. I write this by the tick bf an eight-day clock which was boiled a year ago, and has water and the write this by the tick of an eight-day clock which was boiled a year ago, and has behaved perfectly well ever since."

[Would not the same method answer for sewing machines?—Ed. Sat. Ecc. Post.]

RECEIPTS.

RABBIT STEW .- Cook them with a little chopped onion in a stewpan, with water enough to cover them, and butter and cream, pepper and salt, added when they are nearly done. Or add nothing but butter and wine to the gravy.

FILLET OF MUTTON. -Cut a fillet or round from a leg of mutton; remove all the fat from the outside, and take out the bone. Beat it it well on all sides with a rolling-pin, Beat it it well on all sides with a rolling-pin, to make it more tender, and rub it slightly all over with a very little pepper and salt. Have ready a stuffing made of finely-minced onions, bread-crumbs, and butter, seasoned with a little salt, pepper, and nutmeg, and well mixed. Fill, with some of this stuffing, the place of the bone. Make deep incisions or cuts all over the surface of the meat, and fill them closely with the same stuffing. and fill them closely with the same stuffing Bind a tape round the meat to keep it in shape. But it into a stew-pan, with just water enough to cover it, and let it stew slowly and steadily during four, five, or six hours, in proportion to its size; skimming it frequently. When done, serve it up with its own gravy.

Tomato sauce is an excellent accompaniment to stewed mutten.

To Botl a Turkey or Pair of Fowls. After the turkey is well cleaned, it should lie in salt and water for a few minutes. Fill the body with a stuffing of bread and butter, salt, pepper, and parsley. If oysters are in season, a dozen, large ones, mineed fine, are a nice addition. I'm the poultry in a towel, and put it into boiling water, with a little salt, and a head of celery in it. When half doze add a mint of milk.

THE RIBBLER.

Enigma.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

I am composed of 11 letters.

My 1, 7, 8, 10, is a spice.

My 1, 7, 8, 5, is a place of trade.

My 1, 2, 11, 10, is a small animal.

My 1, 2, 5, 10, is very small.

My 1, 10, 7, 5, is an article of food.

My 1, 3, 11, 10, is a useful animal.

My 1, 7, 8, 11, is a kind of earth.

My 1, 3, 5, 10, is a person usually employed by despots.

My 1, 7, 8, 10, is a domestic animal.

My 1, 7, 5, 10, is an officer.

My 1, 7, 5, 10, is an officer.

My 1, 7, 8, 9, 2, 5, is a wild animal.

My 1, 7, 4, 2, 8, is an estate.

My 1, 10, 7, 11, is used for food.

My 1, 7, 4, 5, 11, 10, is an article of dress.

My 1, 10, 5, 7, 11, is a hard substance.

My 1, 7, 4, 10, is found on certain animals.

My 1, 7, 4, 3, 7, 11, is a small animal.

My 1, 7, 8, 5, 10, 4, is a small animal.

My 1, 7, 5, 8, 2, 4, is an elderly person.

My 1, 7, 5, 3, 8, 10, is to become perfect.

My whole is one of Headley's sacred mountains.

Iracin Station, Pa. I am composed of 11 letters.

Riddle.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

My first is in justice, but not in court. My second's in pleasure, but not in sport. My third is in honor, but not in fame.
My fourth in subjection, but not in shame.
My fifth is in claret, but not in wine. My sixth is in dessert, but not in dine. My seventh's in dye, but not in stain. And my whole has a cold and frosty reign.

Bullimore, Md. EMILY.

Probability Problem.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST-Three arrows are shot into a circular target at random. Required—the probability that they are sticking in the vertices of an acute angled triangle.

ARTEMUS MARTIN. Franklin, Venango Co., Pa. An answer is requested.

Problem.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. A well 30 feet deep contains 18 feet of water, which is to be drawn out by a man at the top, who the first hour takes out 4 feet. How long, with uniform effort, will it take to empty the well?

W. T. STONEBRAKER. West Milton, O.

22" An answer is requested.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Within a square is a spring, the distance of which is 6, 7 and 8 chains from three of the corners. Required—the side of the square.

E. P. NORTON.

Allen, Hillsdale Co., Mich.

An answer is requested.

Conundrums.

まか What is the highest pitch of the voice? ns.—The place where it sticks, profitable to plough the ocean? Ans.—In the days of Ce-crops.  What drum is that which is never beaten? Ans.—The drum of the ear.

Answer to Last.